Washington — Colonel William Donovan seems assured of a place in the Hoover cabinet. But it may not be as attorney general. It may be either the war or navy portfolio.

For several weeks now the president-elect has been under pressure either directly or through friends who would be presumed to have conversations with him on his return, against Colonel Donovan head of the department of justice. Part of the opposition has been due to drys
who believed the
colonel had a wet
background. Some of the opposition
has been due to
religious prejudice,
believing that Mr.
Hoover would not
name a Catholic.

The president-elect has no patience with those who have indirectly or by inference contended that the appointment of Colonel Donovan would be a slap at the southern states who supported Hoover. He is going to name a Catholic, he is not. As for Colonel Donovan, he is

MAIL BANDIT SUSPECT IS RETURNED FOR TRIAL

Memphis, Tenn. —(AP)—Handcuffed and wearing leg irons, Frank Devers, accused mail robber, bank bandit and escaped convict, was returned to Minneapolis Tuesday in custody of two United States Marshals to face charges of robbing a mail pouch at Hibbing two years ago.
Devers, for whose arrest the government had posted a $2,000 reward, was arrested after a hearing Monday and agreed to return to Hibbing for trial. He was identified as the mail robber by T. M. King, railway mail clerk who was held up. Devers also was accused of robbing a bank at Waverly, Ia., in Utah where he was serving a sentence for bank robbery.
Johanna Bruce, 23, of Winona,
Minn., Devers' companion, was arrested a few days ago for receiving stolen property which she said Devers had given her. She also was arrested and extradited and was returned to Minneapolis for trial.

MILWAUKEE TO ALTER ITS STREET NUMBERS

Milwaukee —(AP)—Future visitors to Milwaukee will have little difficulty in finding addresses and streets, that is, if they come after
Jan. 1, 1930.
In February, 1933, the Milwaukee city council began an undertaking which aimed at comprehensive and early underground street and house number systems. Monday night the council adopted a plan that will make those systems a reality.
With only three aldermen opposing it, the council adopted the plan devised and evolved by City Engineer J. P. Schwada, under it, the Milwaukee river and Clinton-st. will now become the base line for east and west thoroughfares, and the Menomonee valley and Canal-st. will be the recognized north and south base line. Each block will have 100 numbers, apportioned according to the Philadelphia system.

Stewart Wins Oil Officers' O.K.

DIRECTORS TO SUPPORT HIM IN ELECTION

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Will Lack Power to Oust
Board Chairman

Chicago —(AP)—President Edward
G. Seubert and directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, in statements to the public and to stockholders Tuesday had aligned themselves behind Col. Robert W.
Stewart in his fight for reelection as chairman of the board in which he is opposed by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The statement to stockholders said the defeat of Colonel Stewart would be "detrimental to the company."

All members of the board, with the exception of Colonel Stewart himself, joined in the statement sent the company's 58,000 stockholders, and announced their intention to vote for Stewart's reelection.

President Seubert's statement to the public said he had informed Mr.
Rockefeller several months ago of his intention to support Colonel Stewart for reelection, and that "any intimations to the contrary are without foundation in fact."

the former machine to stop. A reported.

and Earl Halzer, 1323 N. Oneida-st.
The former was arrested on a simi-

Pope Or Mussolini To Announce Settlement

Rome —(AP)— Formal announcement of the Roman question appeared Tuesday to turn on a question of procedure — whether it should first be made public by Pope Pius XI or by Premier Mussolini.
Some persons thought it would be better to allow the pope to announce it in his first encyclical of 1929 or in the allocation to be pronounced before the spring consideration. In some Fascist circles it was believed that the premier would take occasion to announce completion of a provisional accord at the council of ministers on Thursday morning.

Badger State Still In Grip Of Polar Weather

panied the second zero wave but a keen wind turned what remained on the ground into drifts that were considered the efficiency of snow plows throughout the state.

gasoline boat into harbor here after a four day battle with snow, ice floes and 59 mile gale on Lake Michigan.
They had been missing since Thurs-

Wausau —(AP)—Gov. Walter J. Kohler will attend Wausau's annual winter frolic on Saturday, Feb. 9, according to an announcement made here Monday by D. C. Everest, chairman of the committee in charge of the occasion.

Mr. Everest stated that Mr. and Mrs. Kohler will be guests at the governor's ball to be held that night and that they promised to participate in other events on the four-day program, beginning, Feb. 6, if the governor finds it possible to leave the

CHARGE MAN DROVE FAMILY OUT IN COLD

Fond du Lac —(AP)—Henry Bremer, a farmer, was held for preliminary hearing after arraignment in municipal court here Monday on charges of assault and battery preferred by his wife, who, it is alleged, was driving with her two daughters, from home when the temperature outside was 20 below zero.
It is charged that he struck his wife with a stove poker after a quarrel started when he objected to her drinking a cup of coffee. The wife and two daughters, 11 and 13 years old, were forced to walk to a neighbor's home after being driven out of their home by Bremer, according to their story. The children had neither hats nor mittens and suffered from exposure.

FOCH MAKES SMALL GAIN IN ILLNESS

But World War General Is in Critical Condition at His Home

Paris —(AP)—Heart stimulants by injection were resorted to for the first time Tuesday by the physicians attending Marshal Ferdinand Foch, and the condition of the stricken war leader was reported most critical. The heart action was weakening.

Paris —(AP)— Marshal Ferdinand Foch Tuesday continued his courageous fight for life, with his condition apparently a little easier. During the night there was no change in the 77-year-old soldier's condition and Tuesday morning it was stated that he was no worse, and, if anything, a little better.

While medical opinion now did not regard the case as hopeless, it was acknowledged that it was one of great gravity. Judgement as to the outcome was reserved because of the age of the marshal, whose sturdy frame has been worn by the man-ifold activities into which he has thrown himself since the conclusion of the world war.

Marshal Foch bore the suffering which followed a heart attack with great cheerfulness and courage. He had the will to live, being not at all downhearted. He did not want to have the doctors called, but he submitted to their ministrations with the best possible grace and even exchanged witticisms with them.

Hold Second Autopsy In Ruth Death

Dentist's Explanation Satisfies Police After 4-hour Examination

Watertown, Mass. —(AP)—An autopsy was necessary Tuesday before the body of Mrs. George Herman Ruth, estranged wife of Babe Ruth, could be taken to its last resting place.
Mrs. Ruth died last Friday night in a fire at the home of Dr. Edward H. Kinder, dentist. She had been known to neighbors as Mrs. Helen Kinder and authorities started an investigation into the circumstances of her death when it was learned that she was Mrs. Ruth. That was shortly before the hour which had been set for the funeral.

District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell ordered a second autopsy to be performed Tuesday on the body. Although he said that he was convinced that Mrs. Ruth died from suffocation and incineration, as medical Examiner George L. West of Middlesex-co had reported after a first autopsy. District Attorney
Bushnell will make the autopsy Tuesday because he had equipment better adapted to a chemical analysis of the stomach than had Dr. West.

Report Emphasizes That Anti-War Pact Does
Not Endanger Rights

Washington —(AP)—Early ratifi-

was imminent Tuesday when the group demanding an interpretation accepted a report drafted by Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee. A poll of the committee developed a majority in favor of the report, which stipulates that it shall

Chairman Borah polled the com-those seeking an interpretation would accept a preface to his committee report that it would not be regarded as a reservation to the treaty.

Pending completion of an address
by Senator Walsh, Democrat of Mon-of the committee was continued but Senator Borah was prepared to put the solution of the treaty dispute before the senate and the "interpretationists" said they were ready to vote for ratification of the pact.

Humane Society Is To Be Organized In Outagamie-Co

CLUB SEEKS TO STOP CRUELTY TO DUMB STOCK

County Judge Works With Peter Melcher to Form New Organization

Definite steps toward organizing an Outagamie County Humane society are being taken by Peter A. Melcher, 527 S. Story-st., county humane officer. Mr. Melcher is being helped in the organization work by County Judge Fred V. Heinemann.

Articles of incorporation for the organization are being prepared by Mr. Melcher and Judge Heinemann. They provide for a board of directors to consist of seven members. All of these members will be residents of Appleton, Mr. Melcher said. In addition there will be an advisory board consisting of two people from each town, city and village of the county.

The directors will hold monthly meetings and the advisory board will also hold periodic meetings, probably once every three months. The duty of the members of the advisory board shall be to watch for offenses which will be prosecuted by the organization.

Dues will be $1 per year and any resident of the county will be eligible for membership. The board of directors will vote on new members. Members may be expelled by a two-thirds vote of the entire membership. The entire organization will meet once a year when the board of directors will be named.

Mr. Melcher said he expects that the articles of incorporation will be ready for filing within a week or two. Recently Mr. Melcher, who had conducted a county-wide investigation, made public his findings in which he claimed he had found numerous instances of cruel treatment of animals. He said as soon as the organization was ready he would start cleaning up some of the conditions he alleged he found.

NURSES UNABLE TO COUNT FLU CASES

Only Five Serious Contagion Cases in Schools in December

One case of scarlet fever, one of measles and four of small pox are listed in the December report of the city school nurses. Although influenza was the principle malady during the month, no attempt was made to keep a record of the number of cases, and it was possible to visit homes where the disease was running rampant. While the epidemic was at its height the nurses devoted their time to keeping a close supervision over the pupils still in school and in touch with the situation over the telephone. The number of telephone calls put in during the month reached such enormous proportions that no attempt was made to list them in the monthly report as is the custom.

Over a thousand pupils were weighed and measured during December, with the result that 326 were found to be of normal weight, 223 were 7 per cent or more underweight and 17 were 20 per cent or more underweight. Eighty-seven of the underweight pupils were taken and 19 pupils were given first aid. Complete inspection was given to 133 and partial to 217. There were 59 pupils with defective teeth, 16 of whom attended the dental clinic, 10 with defective vision and 17 with bad tonsils.

FEARS DRY RUSS
Mr. Hoover is concerned lest the drys make an issue of the Hoover appointment and blame the Hoover administration in advance for any failure in enforcement. Mr. Hoover is said to feel that he would like enforcement of prohibition to be conducted by someone who is avowedly dry and who would meet at the outset all the criticism concerning his personal attitude toward the law.

For this reason, the suggestion that Colonel Donovan might have some other portfolio has been made. There is no telling what Mr. Hoover may do about it. There are some of his advisers who think that if the opposition to Colonel Donovan grows too strong it will mean his appointment as attorney general in spite of the protests of the law.

HAS REPUTATION
As assistant attorney general Colonel Donovan has been practically in charge of the department of justice. He has won some notable cases for the government in the supreme court of the United States and is the author of a policy of cooperation with business that has been widely discussed as a formula for preventing undue interference under the Sherman law. Mr. Donovan's idea is that trusts should be warned in advance or counseled ahead of time what they can or cannot do under the law so that there will be no consequent loss to stockholders later on when prosecutions usually are made and the unscrupulous process becomes a hardship to innocent persons.

It, however, Mr. Hoover decides to put Colonel Donovan in either war or navy he will have an active colleague there. Colonel Donovan had a remarkable record overseas and has a number of decorations for valor.

Happier Days in Life of Babe Ruth

Asleep and alone in an upper bedroom in the home of Dr. Edward H. Kinder, wealthy dentist of Watertown, Mass., Mrs. George Herman Ruth, estranged wife of the Yankees' slugger, was burned to death in a fire of undetermined origin. Mrs. Ruth, who was a waitress in a Boston restaurant when she met and married Ruth in 1914, is pictured above with her daughter, Dorothy, who is now in a private school in a Boston suburb. It has been generally accepted that the girl, now 9 years old, is an adopted daughter. Dorothy and the home run king are shown in several views above.

King's Car, Chauffeur At New York Motor Show

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
NEA Service Writer
New York—King George of England may be entitled to the height of luxury and comfort when he goes out for a drive in one of his automobiles, but his first consideration is for the people who want to get a good look at him.

So, whenever he rides, the king turns up the folding seat right behind his chauffeur, pulls down the window in front of him and directs every movement of the car.

So says Frank Buckingham, one of the chauffeurs who has been driving the royal family about the streets of London for many years.

REPLICA BROUGHT HERE
Buckingham is in the United States with an exact duplicate of the automobile in which he takes out the king and queen. It is a large, 12-cylinder Daimler and has been brought here for the New York Automobile Show.

"In all the time I've been driving him," says Buckingham, "I've never seen the king sit in back. It's much more comfortable there, but the king seems to prefer the bucket seat in front."

"I don't know exactly why, unless it's out of consideration for the people who want to see him better along the route. It may be a matter of etiquette, because no one is supposed to sit with his back to the king. But if there are many in the car and the bucket seat has to be used, it could be turned facing the king if he were sitting in back."

"BACK SEAT DRIVER"
The king, however, gives up his place to others and takes the less comfortable one right behind his chauffeur. There he turns down the window between him and the chauffeur a few inches, so that he may direct the movement of the car.

"As we move along, the king watches the crowds ahead. If we approach a particularly large or enthusiastic group, he calls out to me: 'Take it easy, here, or 'Slow down, now, while we pass this group, and I would trottle down to almost a walk, and he would tip his hat while we passed.'"

Queen Mary, on the other hand, sits back and leaves all the driving to the chauffeur.

"The queen has a replica of the king's car, but in a smaller model."

BAD HEALTH WILL LOSE YOU A JOB

Mr. F. W. Carr, 413 1/2 Jones St., Eau Claire, Wis., knows this. "He says: 'I was rundown and suffered so from indigestion, constipation and pains in my back and limbs I believe I would have had to give up my job if it hadn't been for Dreco.' You can't work as you should when your entire system is rundown, and gas pains, constipation and nervousness worry you. Dreco is a combination of herb and plant juices is a splendid tonic and stomachic."

NEW CHURCH FUND SWELLED TO $15,000

First English Lutheran Congregation Closes Most Successful Year

The First English Lutheran church has completed the most successful year in the history of the church, according to reports given at the annual meeting of the congregation, Sunday afternoon at the church. Report of the pastor, the Rev. F. C. Reuter, showed that 69 communicant members were added to the church, 37 by confirmation, 23 by vote of church council and 3 by letter of recommendation.

The finance committee reported that approximately $13,250 was received by the congregation and organizations and that the new church building fund had reached $15,000. The congregation expects to erect a new church on the site of the present church, but not until a substantial amount of money is on hand. The synodical quota for benevolent purposes was paid and the total for all benevolent purposes expended was $1,400. The Ladies Aid society showed the best financial record with a contribution of $4,500 to the building fund. The report of the Sunday school showed the largest increase in membership since its inception.

DRIVES ROYAL VISITORS
Buckingham not only has driven the king and queen, but many royal visitors. He wears a diamond scarf pin presented to him by the Maharajah of Jodhpur whose special chauffeur he was during his entire visit in London recently.

The car the king and queen drive is equipped to the last detail with every comfort and convenience that it is possible to incorporate in an automobile. The interior is of highly polished walnut and is upholstered in gold brocade.

Mechanically the car is as close to perfection as modern automobiles could be. It has a twin-six, sleeve-valve motor, with dual ignition, double carburetion and is built so that it is said to run like a turbine. The motor develops 15 horsepower and can attain a speed of from 3 to 100 miles an hour on high.

Four Groups Will Take Part in County Meet Wednesday Afternoon

Arrangements have been completed for the Outagamie-co Home Talent Play contest which will be staged at the Outagamie Rural Normal school at Kaukauna Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, according to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools and chairman of the arrangements committee.

Four county rural groups will take part in the contest. They are: The Pioneer Rural School Parent Teacher association, Sunny Corners Rural School Parent Teacher association, Badger school Rural Parent Teacher association and Sunny Corners Grange society.

The winter of the contest will represent the county at an inter-county contest which will be staged at Roosevelt junior high school in Appleton on Saturday afternoon. Winner of the inter-county contest, in which Outagamie, Winnebago and Waupaca-cos winners will take part, will represent the district in the state contest at Madison in February.

Judges of the contest at Kaukauna are: W. P. Hagman, principal of the training school, Miss Lucille Smith, dramatics teacher and Elmer Olt, coach at Kaukauna high school. Judges of the district contest are to be chosen by D. E. Lindstrom of the University of Wisconsin Extension division, which with the state department of agriculture, is sponsoring the state home talent play contest. This state contest was inaugurated in 1928 with the aim of bringing cooperation between rural groups of the state and furthering the dramatic art.

Mr. Lindstrom has been aiding Mr. Meating in making arrangements for the county and inter-county contest.

A small admission is to be charged at the inter-county contest which will be staged in Appleton. The receipts will be used to defray the expenses of the winning cast when it goes to Madison to take part in the state contest.

The Roosevelt school, where the contest is to be held, is situated on E. Brewster-st., about two or three blocks east of Wisconsin-ave. People traveling by automobile will be able to reach the school easily by following E. College-ave to N. Drew-st. and then driving straight north until they reach the school. People who are not driving may take a local bus and get off at the corner of Drew-st. and Wisconsin-ave and then walk two blocks north to the school.

ARIZONA ELECTS FORMER LABORER STATE GOVERNOR

Man Who Helped Build State House Is New Executive in Southwestern State

Phoenix, Ariz. — "John the Commoner," who helped build Arizona's state capitol 30 years ago while working as a carpenter's helper at $1.75 a day, moved into the capitol as governor of the state a few days ago.

Here, in the life story of Governor John C. Phillips of Arizona, is one of those perfect Haratio Alger poor-boy-to-fame stories which are rarer in life than fiction. His election shattered a long Democratic regime in the state as he ousted Governor George W. P. Hunt, who had held office for six terms.

LIKES TO HUNT, FISH, LOVE
Nor is Governor John C. Phillips so appalled by his high position that he forgets some of his picturesque past and habits which have endeared him to the state.

As governor he will continue to wear old clothes whenever he feels like it, he says, will cuss when necessity demands, will continue to keep dogs, hunt, fish, love and be afraid of his wife, and not be "to tony for all git-out."

An interview with Governor "John the Commoner," aided and abetted by "mama," reveals the new governor as nothing else could.

The interviewer asks for some facts about age, place of birth and other vital statistics. "Mama"—as he calls his wife—is seated at his side.

Born in Vermont, Illinois," the new governor answers. "In 1870, November 13th, wasn't it, mama?" "Yes," goes on Governor John, "on a farm. Papa was a farmer. All of us had to work. Why shouldn't we?" (This last is a shout.)

"Married Minnie here, Minnie Rexroad. From Macomb, Illinois. In 1895. Prettiest daughter old man Rexford had."

"Come to Phoenix in 'le's see—um—November 1898, wasn't it, mama? A man told 'le it was gonna boom here. Brought Ralph along. The baby."

"It cost money to travel. All I knew was farming and I blew in here without any cash to speak of. They were building the territorial capitol then. I got a job as a carpenter's assistant at $1.75 a day."

Then I worked on the streets, grubbing out catchaws and sage-brush. Peddled fruit."

BEGAN LAW PRACTICE
Then "Governor John the Commoner" tells the tale of studying law on the side and buying a table from Ed Irvine's second-hand store. He devoted all his spare time to his legal education.

"Mama give me two chairs out of the kitchen and I opened my first law office. Done right well, I guess."

Lawyer John C. Phillips key right on sitting in those same kitchen chairs in his law office in a ramshackle building till he moved into the capitol on January 7.

In between those years he had been probate judge, superior judge, and in the state legislature.

He has never been defeated for any office for which he ran. He was re-elected twice to the legislature without even campaigning, and while out of the state.

Arizona says "John the Commoner" was elected by the other common folks with power so great that a Republican governor could be elected in a normally Democratic state.

ONE STATE LAW-MAKER HAS TWO PROFESSIONS

Madison — (P) — One of the state's law-makers has two professions—doctor and farmer. L. S. Shauger, Price-count assemblyman, is the one who is equally able to plow or prescribe.

He was born in Outagamie-co. Wisconsin and finished grade and high school in that county. Then he graduated from Keokuk Medical college in 1903 and for seven years practiced medicine in Waupaca county. Moving to Price county in 1910, he took up farming, and almost abandoned his practice.

Assembly Shauger started the political work that led to his coming to the assembly for the first time this year, by being elected to rural school offices several times, serving as chairman of the town of Ogema, in which he is resident for the last eight years, and for the last three years chairman of the Price county board of Supervisors. He has held other county offices.

Elected as a Conservative Republican, he sees Gov. Kohler's platform convention plank as a constructive program.

When coming to Madison, however, he favored the four-cent gasoline tax to provide concrete through-state highways, while Gov. Kohler has expressed more favor for cheaper roads, without additional taxation. Mr. Shauger favors federal forests on non-agricultural lands and readjustment of the delinquent tax situation.

The riders of the New Hebrides villages are the plutocrats, the man of many pias.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS
Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, grunting, blowing, headache, dryness. No straining for breath at night; your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relieves almost instantly. It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh. Relief comes so quickly. adv.

"John, the Commoner"

Now he sits in the Governor's chair.

ANOTHER AIR MAIL LETTER ALMOST LOST

Trials and troubles of air mail pilots and the risks they take again was impressed upon an Appleton business house Monday morning with receipt of a letter from a Boston concern inquiring whether the local company had received a letter sent air mail. The reason for the inquiry was contained in a clipping which revealed that a certain Boston to New York mail plane was forced to make a landing in an emergency field at night when driven off its course by a sleet storm. Two days before, the plane over the route had crashed, killing the pilot and destroying the plane and contents. The letter which the Boston company inquired about had been received in Appleton 24 hours after mailing, however. A previous letter had been burned in the wrecked plane.

WANT PRODUCTIVE CUTOVER ACREAGE

This Desire Interests State in Forestry as Much as Timber, Says Wilson

Madison — (P) — The desire to see 12 million acres of cutover land once more productive is as much the reason for Wisconsin's interest in forestry as concern for future timber supplies. In the opinion of F. G. Wilson, of the state college of agriculture.

In the early days of logging, it was assumed that the plow would follow the axe, but settlement failed to keep pace with timber cutting. Mr. Wilson points out that since much of the land has been held by the owners for many years, carrying charges of taxes and interest have raised the investment above the land's sale value.

Because the land brought no income, but was a constant source of expense, and because supply exceeded demand for such property, owners began to drop it by falling to pay taxes. So long as such land is on the assessment roll, the county must pay for the state and town share on such property, even though the tax is not collected.

Because of the county's financial interest in the cutover areas, Mr. Wilson believes the greatest advance in the field of forestry during the few years will be made by that unit of government, with perhaps, cooperation from the state.

"To avoid paying a share of the taxes which are not received, many counties are proceeding to take tax deed. At the end of the 1927 tax sale, Marinette county owned 68,000 acres, and another 169,000 acres were deedable. By now, the county probably owns or has claim on a quarter million acres. Most of the northern counties are in a similar situation."

"The point is that a new public domain, county owned, is being formed. Many county boards believe much of this land will find its highest use in county forests."

APPLETON PEOPLE FEED BIRDS AFTER HEAVY SNOW FALL

Several Appleton people, lovers of bird and animal life, have been finding ample opportunity during the last week to satisfy their urge to be of help to their furry and feathery friends in the city.

Because of the heavy fall of snow the winter birds and squirrels, living in the city, have been unable to find enough to eat. These people point out. Many of these persons have been throwing out bits of bread, nuts, corn and other feed for the birds and squirrels.

One popular method of feeding birds is to fasten a piece of wire to a bit of bread and hang it from a branch of a tree, out of reach of dogs and cats. The birds will flock to the tree to eat. The squirrels, too, appreciate this kindness these people claim.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR ELK CLUB INITIATION

The class is being named after Mr. Conway as the ranking Elk from year's membership and is the first of four classes to be named after veteran members of the organization. The evening's meeting will open with a dinner at 6:30. An entertainment program has been planned after the initiation services.

Board Hopes to Safeguard Civil Rights of Illegitimate Children

Madison — (P) — To safeguard civil rights of illegitimate children, paternity of all such births should be established by court action, the state board of health will recommend in its forthcoming biennial report on vital statistics.

Certificates of these births filed with the bureau are usually deficient in the facts surrounding the paternity. At some future time, according to the report, this may result in some of these children losing privileges to which they are entitled.

The board will express the hope in the report that the 1929 legislature will enact in the proposed children's code a clause requiring a court action to establish paternity in the future. A similar recommendation was made two years ago.

"When this is made a routine procedure as is done in many other states," the report continues, "a copy of the court order establishing paternity can be attached to the

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

Count on coast radio hook-up every Saturday night through the National Broadcasting Company's network. The Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra in "The Tunes that made Broadway."

"Light a Lucky and you'll never miss sweets that make you fat"

Constance Talmadge

Instead of eating between meals... beautiful women keep youthful slenderness these days by smoking Luckies. The smartest and loveliest women of the modern stage take this means of keeping slender... when others nibble fattening sweets, they light a Lucky!

Lucky Strike is a delightful blend of the world's finest tobaccos. These tobaccos are toasted—a costly extra process which develops and improves the flavor. That's why Luckies are a delightful alternative for fattening sweets. That's why there's real health in Lucky Strike. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

For years this has been no secret to those men who keep fit and trim. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not harm their physical condition. They know that Lucky Strike is the favorite cigarette of many prominent athletes, who must keep in good shape. They respect the opinions of 20,679 physicians who maintain that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

FLU REACHES PEAK, PHYSICIANS REPORT

Neenah — The flu and grip situation here has reached its peak, according to physicians, who have had but few new cases to attend to during the last few days. The change in weather conditions to severe cold has helped to check the spread of the diseases. Those now existing are well under control. Pupils who have been absent on account of illness have returned to their studies in most cases. There are still a few of the more contagious cases among some of the students which bear watching, according to Miss Ada Garvey, school nurse.

Power Company Considers Putting in Cars for Local Transportation

Neenah — Neenah is to have local bus service in the near future, according to Mayor George E. Sande who was in conference Monday afternoon with A. K. Ellis, manager of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company. The utility has offered to furnish this city service with one bus entirely within the city limits by taking in the island part of the city the new high school, the cemetery park and the south city limits. Another meeting is to be held to complete plans for presentation to the council.

A schedule will be arranged so that the bus can be boarded at certain parts of the city at a certain time. This service has long been sought by the city, especially

CORN BORER EXPERTS ADOPT CONTROL PLAN FOR SEASON

SEEK GOOD CROPS DESPITE PRESENCE OF FOREIGN PEST

Infested Area Is Spreading Rapidly, Special Committee Reports

BY FRANK I. WELLER (Associated Press Farm Editor)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Convinced that the American corn belt is doomed to complete invasion, the joint committee on the European corn borer, composed of entomologists, agronomists, agriculture engineers and economists from the United States and Canada, has decided to devote its efforts to producing good crops in the midst of infestation.

Dr. W. H. Larrimer, entomologist in charge of the government's work with the insect, says it is spreading south as rapidly as west and that by the end of the year the boundary line of invasion likely will extend from southern Indiana up through eastern Illinois to the Wisconsin border. The infested area, now embracing the northeastern states and sweeping from south central Ohio to northwestern Indiana, is growing at the rate of approximately 3 miles annually.

Recognizing the essentiality, members of the joint committee, in formulating plans for 1929, stressed the importance of continued research, quarantine, and farm clean-up. They recommended increased federal and state appropriations for research and quarantine, but suggested that clean-up activities be conducted chiefly by individual farmers.

Because of the break in the continuity of the 1928 clean-up campaign, occasioned by the failure of congress to make additional appropriations in time to protect the 1929 crop, and because of the impracticability of enforcing effective clean-up measures under present state laws, the committee did not favor another large federal fund for compulsory control.

WANT ACREAGE HELD
Dr. Larrimer, one of the government's "four horsemen" of corn borer control, with whom the joint committee conferred, placed special importance on destruction of borer breeding places—some 200 plants and weeds in addition to corn stalks. His associates, who concurred with him, are Dr. A. F. W. Weller, federal director of scientific work; Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chief entomologist and chairman of plant quarantine and control administration; and L. H. Worthley, field director of federal control work.

They are eager that the present corn acreage be maintained despite the borer, and declare that by proper methods profitable crops can be grown in the midst of infestation. Areas in Canada, once abandoned but now growing mature corn, are cited as ample proof that farmers are learning to cope effectively with the pest. They do not believe the presence of the borer will materially increase the cost of corn production once farmers adopt methods necessary to its control.

While there still is hope, Dr. Larrimer says, efforts to parasitize the borer have not reached a stage of effectiveness and that breeding of corn strains, immune to the borer is perhaps several years away, if possible at all.

The joint committee views the borer as "one of the most alarming crop pests ever produced" and says that while it presents the possibility of a national calamity it may be circumvented by continued vigilance of the farmer, the scientist, the educator, and all state and federal administrative officials.

BULLETIN TELLS HOW TO CONDUCT MEETING

BY W. F. WINSEY

"Conducting the Business Meeting" is the title of circular 227, written by A. F. Weller and issued by the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture. The bulletin presents the essentials of parliamentary practice and is intended for the service of rural community organizations.

The purpose of parliamentary practice is to make a group "civic-minded" rather than "crow-minded," says the author. "It obtains order out of what might be chaos. It makes possible the will of the majority to prevail and at the same time protects the rights of the minority by giving individuals certain privileges. It is designed to insure democracy in practice and as such should become a part of all rural community organizations."

The rules for conducting meetings are presented under the headings: (1) Accepted Order of Business, (2) Motions, (3) Amendments, (4) Voting Methods, (5) Election of Officers, (6) Records, (7) Reports, and (8) Committees.

The bulletin will be very serviceable in rural schools, Parent-Teacher associations, 4-H clubs, Home Economic Groups and in any other groups in which business meetings are held. Before the bulletin was published, it was difficult to obtain parliamentary rules in a form suitable to the use of anybody but experts. For this reason the new bulletin will be in large demand.

At the business meeting officers will be chosen, and H. J. Norton and Roy T. Harris will lead a discussion of the herd improvement test.

Farmers Are Making Money From Orchards

BY W. F. WINSEY

Albert J. Jandrey, Spencer road, is a member of the first group of farmers about here who decided to redeem their orchards and to make them paying propositions. For a number of years before making the decision and taking care of his trees, Mr. Jandrey noticed that although his trees were covered with blossoms each spring he got few marketable apples in the fall or none at all. Last fall, as a result of putting his resolution into effect, which consisted of pruning, his trees and spraying them several times during the spring

AWARD PRIZES AT POULTRY EXHIBIT

Low Temperatures and Snow Storms Keep Down Attendance at Show

BY W. F. WINSEY

While the birds and animals at the Fox River Poultry and Best Stock show in the Armory here the past week were of an exceptionally high grade and were drawn from a wide area, the road blockade, the low temperature and the swirling snow storms cut off the expected attendance from Green Bay, Manitowish, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Clintonville and Shawano and interesting farm districts, and limited the visitors to those exclusively to the residents of Appleton. Even under these unfavorable conditions, 1,000 poultry and rabbit fanciers visited the Armory on each of two days and smaller on the other days.

In the department of poultry the classes and the big winners of premiums were: Harry J. McCarten, Australorp, William M. Drexler, Black Wyandottes, John Vanden Linden, Barred Plymouth Rocks, Siegen and Tonne, Green Bay, S. R. L. Red, Frank E. Murphy, Green Bay, White Plymouth Rocks, Black Jersey Giants and Single Comb White Leghorns, Myse and Sons, Light Brown Leghorns and Barnevelds; William F. Flotow Butters; L. P. Bushey, Buff Orpingtons; Reifens' Poultry Yards, Oshkosh, White Cochins; Bantams; Ferdinand Laehn, Buff Plymouth Rocks, Mc Casten and Myse, Black Wyandotte Bantams; A. C. Denner, Black Cochins; Bantams; R. H. Pfund, R. C. Black Bantams, and S. C. Black Minorcas; Mrs. R. Jack, Hortonville, Utility Class.

In the department of rabbits the big winners were: Henry Boldt, Chinchillas, New Zealand White and Best Junior Buck; C. A. Gebke, Havana and Sable; A. G. Maas, Silver Black Fox; A. H. Davis, White Flemish Giant and Blue Flemish Giant; Alois Van Zieled, Steel Flemish and Silver Maxlin; Lakeside Rabbitries, Whitewater, Himalayan, Tiltie, Camp D'Argents, and Blue B. Ray Schroeder, New Zealand Red; William Fur Farm, champion rabbit of the show; Delrei Rabbitry, best doe with litter. The judge of poultry was E. G. Roberts, and of rabbits Fred T. Witt, Clintonville.

BREEDERS TO DISCUSS LISTING OF CATTLE

BY W. F. WINSEY

At the next annual meeting of Outagamie-Holstein Breeder's association, the listing of cattle of members for sale with the secretary of the association, introduced by Paul Nyhus and successfully practiced for several years and then discontinued, will be up for discussion and possible revival.

It is claimed for the plan tried out and discontinued that while it costs nothing it is a great convenience to outside buyers, guides of outside buyers, and local dealers in cattle. It eliminates all inquiring and misstatements of the driving now done.

To make the plan work all the owner would be required to do would be to list his name and a family with the secretary and to furnish the secretary of each sale with a list of the lists may be kept up to date, reliable and serviceable.

FARM PRICE LEVEL UNCHANGED AT 134 PER CENT, REPORT

Further Declines in Meat Prices Offset by Advances in Crop Prices

BY W. F. WINSEY

The general level of farm prices remained unchanged at 134 per cent of the pre-war level during the period from November 15 to December 15, according to the January farm price report of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. At 134, the index is 3 points below December a year ago. Slight advances in the farm prices of nearly all crops and seasonal advances in the farm prices of eggs and dairy products from November 15 to December 15 offset further declines in the farm prices of meat animals, wool, chickens, and work animals. The indices of the farm prices of grains, dairy products, and cotton and cottonseed advanced 2 points from November 15 to December 15, while the index for poultry products advanced 12 points. Meat animals declined 7 points and fruits and vegetables 1 point.

The farm price of hogs from November 15 to December 15 continued the usual seasonal decline due to increased receipts. Receipts of hogs at seven primary markets during the 4-week period ending December 22 were 24 per cent larger than during a corresponding period ending November 24. The corn-hog ratio declined from 11.3 to 10.4 for the United States and from 12.6 to 12.0 for Iowa during the month.

The farm price of corn which has been declining since July, 1928, made a slight recovery from November 15 to Dec. 15. Prices advanced 3 per cent in the South Central States and 2 per cent in the North Central States, while an additional decline of 3 per cent was made along the Atlantic Seaboard. This resulted in an average advance of 1 per cent for the country as a whole. These price changes were accompanied by a continuation of good foreign demand and indications that the 1928 corn crop is about two per cent smaller than estimated on November 1.

The farm price of wheat advanced 1 per cent from November 15 to December 15. The advance in the farm price was fairly general for the country as a whole with the exception of a slight decline in the south Atlantic States. These price changes have been accompanied by a decline in market receipts and a decrease in the visible supply in this country.

After a prolonged decline which began last April, the farm price of potatoes recovered slightly from November 15 to December 15, although the advance amounted to only a little over 1 per cent. The farm price was unchanged in the North Central States, advanced about 5 per cent in the South Atlantic Division, and approximately 1 per cent in the remainder of the country. The price advance was accompanied by a seasonal decline in carlot shipments and a slight reduction in the estimate of total 1928 production.

The farm price of cotton advanced from 17.8 to 18.0 cents per pound from November 15 to December 15 in contrast with the usual seasonal decline during this period. In the South Atlantic States the farm price advance amounted to nearly 3 per cent, but the rise was limited to approximately 1 per cent in the remainder of the Cotton Belt. The farm prices of cottonseed advanced about 1 per cent during the same period.

BROWN-CO FARMERS START MAIL TESTING

Laboratory Is Equipped in Basement of Courthouse at Green Bay

BY W. F. WINSEY

Green Bay—Testing in the Brown-co Mail Order Cow Testing association started Tuesday, according to J. N. Kavanaugh, county agent. The testing will be done in the basement of the county court house where a laboratory for the purpose is being equipped. Frank Huntington, former tester for the Greenleaf association, will do the testing.

In the mail order plan of testing cows, a box containing small samples of milk is sent to each member once a month. The member takes his own samples and weighs the milk one day a month. The box containing the samples is then mailed to Green Bay where the milk is tested. A report of the test is sent to the member within three days after the box of samples is received, giving the average test, and the amount of butterfat produced. An annual report is sent to each member at the end of each year, giving a production record of each cow in a herd for the year.

Suggestions on feeding will be sent to each member from time to time and help will be given in balancing rations with the use of home grown feeds.

The cost of membership in the association is $1.40 a year for a herd of 14 cows or less. A charge of $1.20 per cow is made for cows above fourteen. There are no extra charges for mailing as postage is paid by the association.

In Clarksburg over 400 farmers are members of the mail order cow testing association, and practically every member likes the plan better than the old method of cow testing. The reason for their preference is that no production records of cows and bulls are published and that the farmer knows that his cows are producing.

Any farmer interested in becoming a member of the Brown-co association should get in touch with County Agent J. N. Kavanaugh, at once.

MILK DELIVERIES GO ON IN SPITE OF SNOW

BY W. F. WINSEY

Except on Sunday, the snow blockade has not stopped deliveries of milk from the stations at Kaukauna, Apple Creek and Greenfield, to the central plant of Potts, Wood and Company in this city. Farmers off the main roads, however, have changed from trucks to teams in making deliveries to substations of the company. The past year, the amount of business done by the company is about the same as the previous season. Deliveries are holding up well for the winter and will soon be on the increase. The price paid farmers for 2.5 per cent milk during December was $22 per hundred pounds.

FARMERS CONFORM TO LAWS OUTLINED BY HEALTH BOARD

Milk Producers Cooperating With Inspectors, Farm Writer Finds

BY W. F. WINSEY

Conscious of the intrinsic merit of clean milk for consumers, and the uniformity of requirements in large cities, creameries, condensaries, and cheese and butter factories, farmers in this part of the state are conforming to the rules of the Chicago Board of Health, and cooperating with the inspectors in a much better spirit than when they considered stable inspections a much handed interference in their private affairs.

Most of the farmers now have milk houses, whitewash their stables at least once a year, and all of them keep hogs and chickens in separate buildings, and use clean utensils as the common sense of milk.

They are all posted on the requirements essential for the production of clean milk with low bacteria count and keeping quality, which are being enforced by the Chicago Board of Health and boards of health of other cities. It is said that these requirements have not been changed in the past 20 years. Some of them are: (1) Keep entire body of cow clean; clip long hair from udder, tail and flanks; (2) Keep cows in a barn, completely separated from horses and other animals; (3) Keep stable well ventilated without drafts on cows; (4) Floor and gutter should be tight, cement is best; walls and ceiling smooth; tight, clean, white-washed twice a year or painted once every two years; (5) Remove manure daily to field, or store at least 10 feet away from barn and in such manner as to prevent breeding of flies; (6) Locate milk house away from duct, odors and hogs; make it tight, clean and well ventilated; provide an impervious floor and cement cooling vat; use milk house only for handling and storage of milk; an adequate, easily accessible water supply of safe, sanitary quality should be available.

(7) All containers and utensils should be easily cleaned and in good repair, with seams soldered flush, never rusty nor rough, and used exclusively for milk. They should be thoroughly cleaned after each use by rinsing again. After cleaning, the utensils and containers should be thoroughly sanitized with steam, by submerging in boiling water, or with a chlorine solution. They should be stored in an inverted position in a place protected from flies and dust.

(8) Give no dry, dusty food just previous to milking. Wipe udder and surrounding parts with a clean, damp cloth immediately before milking. Wash, if necessary. Milkers must wear clean outer garments, wash hands before milking, and milk with dry hands. Use the hooded or small top pail only. Take milk from each cow immediately to milk house. Strain at once through sterilized cotton flannel, or cotton. Then cool at once to 55 degrees or lower and maintain that temperature until delivery. Never mix warm and cooled milk, nor night and morning milk. Never let milk freeze.

STUDY PROBLEMS OF FARMERS AT FARM FOLKS WEEK

Annual Gathering Will Be Held at Madison from Feb. 4 to 8, Inclusive

Madison—(AP)—The farm and every aspect of the agricultural problem will be discussed and studied at the annual Farm Folks Week at the University of Wisconsin Feb. 4 to 8 inclusive.

"Reliable Farm Relief" is the theme around which this year's session is built and in a prospectus just issued, the university college of agriculture says:

"Farmers everywhere are looking forward anxiously to legislative action that will add to the profits of farming. What they may be doing—and should be doing—is to make the most of the situation that every farmer must work out his own individual destiny. Nothing that can or will be given through legislation can offset the damaging effect of high production charges, low yields and high marketing costs."

"What each individual farmer can do to improve his own income certainly constitutes 'Reliable Farm Relief.'"

A general five-day program of interest to farmers in general has been arranged, and in addition specialized studies are planned in agricultural engineering, farm crops, soils, potato growing and orchards, agricultural economics, poultry, livestock, broilers, sheep and swine, Holstein Friesian and Guernsey breeders' associations, and dairying.

Among the speakers at the general sessions will be: Harry L. Russell, dean of the Wisconsin college of agriculture; B. H. Hibbard, professor of agricultural economics; James F. Poole, Chicago; M. F. Cutlery, Cudahy, Wis.; L. J. Tabor, master of the national granary at Columbus, O.; O. E. Reed, chief of the dairy bureau, United States Department of Agriculture; President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin; E. B. Hart, professor of agricultural chemistry; Oscar Mayer, Jr., Chicago, of the National Institute of Meat Packers; A. J. Glover, Ft. Atkinson, editor of Hornd's Dairyman.

On the last day of the week, winners in the county home talent play contest will perform.

SAYS FARMERS WON'T GROW MORE CABBAGE

BY W. F. WINSEY

As cabbage growers in Outagamie county have had considerable experience and are level headed, they will not be inclined to increase their customary acreage of cabbage next spring as a result of a big crop and bumper prices this year, according to W. C. Williams, local grower and dealer in cabbage. Each of the grower plants the same acreage every year and will continue to do so in the opinion of Mr. Williams.

The indications for cabbage growers to increase their acreage beside a satisfactory yield last year, is $47 a ton of a cabbage head for two weeks past and a satisfactory price during the marketing season. A large acreage, a low yield and a high price are not out of the question in the game of farming.

From Appleton and the As-ham siding, Mr. Williams shipped 544 casks of cabbage this season and he estimates that 600 casks will be shipped from the same points by other local people. He still has 21 cars to ship and growers have about 40 cars in the storage. The storages will be cleaned out by February 1.

The total value of crops grown in 1927 or irrigated land furnished with water from the works of the Bureau of Reclamation was $123,207,210, an increase of $23,087,550 compared with 1926.

THE UNITED STATES OF ILLINOIS

Among the many heavy responsibilities the Chicago Tribune is called upon to assume is that of determining which states are fit to be in the Union and which are not. A number of years ago it placed California on the eligible retirement list because of its position on Japanese exclusion. A little later it called Ohio the "dirty brat" of the nation because of some peeve and ruled it out of the social order. Next it decided that Tennessee ought to have its statehood revoked because of the evolution trial, and recently it accorded the same distinction to Arkansas on like grounds. It has long held that Wisconsin is out of the Union, while Indiana, because of Stephenson and the Klan, is on probation.

Now, in an editorial headed, "Michigan's place in the Union," it says: "If they haven't the civilized courage to deny the zealots their blood rites there will not be much general objection to dropping Michigan out of the Union." That our readers may understand just what is meant by this Menckonian phrase we will add that the Tribune has been for some months quite hot up over the Michigan law which includes prohibition offenses in its so-called Baumes fourth conviction act.

We suppose there are other states the Tribune does not consider fit to associate with the state in which it is domiciled. We suppose, too, that Illinois, according to the Tribune's rating, is the world's greatest state, but great as Illinois may be it is not without its blemishes. Michigan, Ohio, California, Wisconsin and the others may have forfeited their rights to statehood, but we do not recall that any of them ever had a Len Small for governor. Nor do we believe that any of them has had in one generation two senators-elect rejected by the United States senate because of tainted credentials.

Certainly no other state harbors a city like that of Chicago, which for ten years straight has taken the blue ribbon annually as the greatest crime city of the world, with a murder a day and the law powerless to punish or prevent, and a William Hale Thompson kept in office as mayor for eight to ten years. We should say that Chicago itself was slightly deficient in "civilized courage" and is not exactly the center from which to moralize the rest of the Union on savagery and virtue. Perhaps if Illinois were roped off or walled in the other states might manage to get along fairly well.

A little more preaching at home and less abroad might elevate the quality of the Tribune's public service. There is an old adage about people who live in glass houses. After all, minding one's own business is a life-sized and a life-long job. It is a pity Illinois can't furnish all the presidents of the United States, together with their governors and mayors. Think of a Small-Thompson school for governors, mayors and presidents!

ENFORCING THE LAW

An Indiana man was fined $840 for having thirty-five quail in his possession out of season. It will take him some time to pay this penalty out of the profits of selling game illegally. The chances are even that he may never violate the conservation law again. It will have a powerfully restraining effect on others disposed to kill game out of season. Indiana has very little of either fish or game. There are more of quail than any other edible bird. Naturally it wants to keep what it has and realizes that it can do so only by enforcing laws for its protection.

Wisconsin will learn this lesson some day, too. At present the enforcement of conservation laws with respect to illegal fishing and hunting is largely a farce. Both game and fish are constantly taken out of season and only a very small percentage of violations are detected and punished. Furthermore, fines are comparatively light except for flagrant offenses. The way to conserve and perpetuate our wild life is to give it the bonafide protection that our conservation laws intend it should have.

EX-PRESIDENTS' JOBS

An imaginative cartoon of rich humor appeared in a recent issue of Life. It pictured Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge seated across a reading table in a great chandelied room of the White House, the president in carpet slippers and obviously content as he peruses his newspaper, the first lady decidedly uneasy. About her are littered "success" magazines, and in her hand an article, "Where will you be at sixty-five?" She inquires:

"Calvin, hadn't you better begin to be thinking about the future?"

What to do with ex-presidents—or, rather, what ex-presidents can do to make a living and still maintain an appropriate dignity—is a live question. They have reached the top; where do they go from there?

The last four ex-presidents who retained their health were Harrison, Cleveland, Roosevelt and Taft. Harrison went back to law, which is felt to be eminently respectable. He even came back into the public eye for a time as Venezuela's counsel in its famous dispute with Great Britain.

Cleveland became a Princeton lecturer, a trustee of that university, and a reorganization promoter for a great life insurance company in serious straits. He succeeded, too—indicating, by the way, the very considerable value of an ex-president's name and influence, as well as ability, in business.

Roosevelt wrote for a dollar or two a word, hunted, kept himself actively in political life, and probably would have been president in 1921 had he lived.

Taft lectured, taught, and has now risen to the top of a second branch of the federal government—thus achieving perhaps the most remarkable record of any ex-president.

Mr. Coolidge is a politician, giving his whole life efficiently to serving the public. In many respects his career has paralleled Lincoln's, who also was frankly and unabashedly an office seeker, and who also practiced law between terms. If Mr. Coolidge should desire to return to politics after a rest, he has an admirable precedent in the life of John Quincy Adams, whose political career after his presidency was even more notable than his term in office. Adams went back to congress and became one of the most successful anti-slavery and anti-gag rule fighters in that body. When asked if he did not think it degraded an ex-president to accept the lesser office of congressman, Adams made a reply which deserves to live:

"No person can be degraded by serving the people as a representative in congress—or as a selectman of his town."

RACIAL SNOBBERY

A leading American missionary, Dr. E. Stanley Jones of Baltimore, finds that there is growing up in the world today a "religion of the white skin." It is this snobbish religion, he says, taking white supremacy and superiority for granted, which more than anything else hinders Christian missionary work and endangers the peace of the world.

"I find throughout the orient," he declares, "not only a feeling of resentment but a seething tide of wrath against the white man. And I think the whites are beginning to realize and fear it. The idea that the white race has any right of eminent domain over the world is being challenged. If there is going to be comity and understanding between the orient and the occident, it can no longer continue on a basis of patronage, however gracious and well-intentioned, but must be on a basis of equality."

In short, if the white race is to get along with the other races, it must stop being so arrogant. Arrogance is not only unchristian but impolitic, whether in dealing with equals or inferiors.

There remain approximately 134,000,000 acres of unappropriated public lands in the United States, exclusive of the Territory of Alaska.

Only with the beginning of the 17th century was there recognized the need for a dictionary which should help Englishmen to a better knowledge of their language.

Not until the end of the 16th century did the cult of the pillar saints completely disappear from the earth.

EATING LATE—SAY AFTER FORTY

That fine old maxim about going to bed with the chickens and getting up with the milk men is now thoroughly defunct and there isn't even an argument about it. It is repealed and repudiated by science, common sense, the forward progress of civilized life, and one might as well try to revive the night air body as to argue that health is promoted or illness avoided by the practice of going to bed early and beating the sun up in the morning. I seriously believe that if business and professional people, or in other words, people who live by their wits and do no honest work, were to follow the quaint regimen of going to bed late and getting up late and crawl out in the crack of dawn, few of 'em would live to see forty, much less struggle with the eating question afterward. Practically all the healthful recreation or exercise people of this class get is in the shank of the evening, and if they were to cultivate the habit of snoozing through the after dinner hours they'd succumb to the humid equivalent of dry rot.

Late suppers are just as ruinous to health as ever they were for folks past forty. Even though the gorge be confined to wholesome foods, it represents just too much excess nutrition, and that is the one thing most slackers over forty do not need, no matter how much they think they want it. For the youngsters, however, bedtime lunches or snacks or even a hearty dinner just before retiring, may be approved as generally healthful.

In the first place, digestion proceeds most naturally and undisturbed while you sleep. Nor does any proper food taken late at night conduce toward unrest, insomnia or nightmare. It is the error of using stimulants in connection with a late supper, such as coffee, or narcotics such as alcohol or tobacco, that accounts for the disturbance of sleep commonly ascribed to late eating. Of course if an individual who is already overweight, overfed, lays in a superfluous stock of fuel shortly before retiring, some rebellion by outraged nature is to be expected. But folks under forty have no excuse for being that way.

Now I must say something that pains me as much as it will any reader over forty. Irrespective of the pensive sighs of the girls who would like to have the figures their husbands admired in the halcyon days but manfully profess to deem not so lovely now, our main trouble is the cursed carbohydrates. It seems that every path of investigation of the infirmities and sorrows of middle age and after skirts in and around the hateful thought of cutting down the carbohydrate ration. That covers about everything that is good to eat when you're hungry—bread, fats, pudding, pie, candy, ice cream, sugar, jellies, syrup, fried corn meal mush—I can't go on, with fried corn meal mush and old-fashioned jellies on it ruthlessly out of the picture.

The latest and news comes from the British front in the Himalayan mountains. Observation and study carried on there by McCarrison indicate that deficiency of Vitamin B and Vitamin C in the American diet has considerable to do with the excessive prevalence of gastric ulcer, appendicitis, gallstone disease and colitis in this country; and worse still our excessive carbohydrate indulgence contributes toward the same sorrows of middle age.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Vitamins

Does canned grapefruit juice contain the same vitamins as fresh grapefruit or orange juice? Which is better for the health, orange or grapefruit? (C. R. S.)

ANS.—The canned product contains some of the vitamins but not as much as the fresh juice. Orange and grapefruit and lemon are equally healthful. Orange contains more sugar and is more nutritious than grapefruit.

The Humid Season Before the Drought

I dampen my hair every night. I have heard this rote the roots. Please advise me whether it is an unwise practice.—(E. Z.)

ANS.—The only objection to wetting the hair habitually is that it tends to remove the natural sebum or oil. If your hair is at all dry, brittle or lustreless, better stop wetting it and use some oil. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for advice about the care of the hair.

Something About Worms

Please write something about worms. My doctor seems to think children don't have them, and I believe other physicians say the same thing. . . . I don't want to make the children take a lot of worm medicine unless it is necessary.—(Mrs. R. S.)

ANS.—I probably misunderstood the doctor. Of course every doctor knows that children commonly have worms, but every doctor knows that this is seldom the explanation for the symptoms the granies are so readily ascribe to "worms." As for worm medicine, it is rank injustice to feed any child such medicine, unless under the care of a physician. Most of the stuff purporting to be "worm medicine" isn't worth a tinker's dam if the child really happens to have worms.

That's Her Weakness Now

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT C. PLUMMER

Washington—(AP)—There is one chamber in the capitol building that never fails to leave this writer with a feeling of gloom and depression. It is located directly beneath the rotunda, and is known as the crypt.

The massive Doric columns and grained ceiling are most forbidding. They are even dismal. One has the feeling that suddenly he has come upon an opening in a cavern or descended the steps into a burial vault.

This feeling is increased when the eye beholds a marble group statue in the center of the chamber. It is a memorial to three great women suffrage leaders—Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott. It is the sole object in the vast enclosure, and it would not be there if a more suitable place could be found. When Adelaide Johnson completed the work this was the only available place for it. Here it will stay until a permanent location is found.

At present a simple wreath hangs on the statue, placed there on the

See-Sawing On Broadway
By Gilbert Swan

New York — It's a long trek from the dim squalor and wine-soaked odor of a tiny "gargotte," or inn, in Genoa's Portoria section to a dim lit, plush curtained, elegantly attended theater in the mid-fifties of the Broadway belt.

But when the plush curtains were drawn the other afternoon, Pasquale Taraffo plected together the story of this climb, in excellent Spanish which I couldn't understand, but which an interpreter could.

Taraffo is the latest addition to the Spanish invasion which has been under way for a season — in fact, dates back to Raquel Meller, who really came from Paris, even if she did sing Spanish songs. Sagovia, the guletist, arrived a year ago and no Manhattan theater is large enough to house the crowds he draws. L'Aragentina, who can do things to castanets like Helen Willis can do things to tennis rackets, and Al Jolson can do things to mammy songs, has had the notable circles all hot and bothered this semester.

And now comes Taraffo—and if I seem to pass over the others to reach him, it is because Taraffo had a story to tell — the sort of story I should like to tell about New York places and things if I knew where to find them.

The dark lane of Genoa's Portoria section is not a pretty place. We who go slumming would find it "colorful," "amusing" and all that. But also we would find it drunken. Here some years ago, appeared a youth with a broken, nondescript guitar. He deposited himself on a bench in the corner and began to play for the herd of drunken hangers on. He played because he needed food. A loaf of bread was all he asked of life. But even this took a few coppers. So he sat and played in the corner and had pennies tossed in his hat. And so he came again to play — and again, and again.

Today Taraffo will tell you the little tavern is still there. Outside in the lane dirty young ragamuffins race about as usual, and women stand in wringing groups. But the bar bums of yesterday are gone. A very different crowd comes today. And they come because word had traveled of a lad who sat in a corner and played a guitar.

There are writers there now, and critics and artists who come and play. The squalid gargotte has become a musical mecca wherein now hangs a large painting of a young man, below which is an inscription: "Pasquale Taraffo — master of the guitar." Of course, the American concern agents found him sooner or later. And that's that.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

ASHTORETH ASHE, poor but beautiful (a stenographer from Boston), meets Death while cruising through the Caribbean.

Her roommate, MONA DE MUSSET, beautiful and mysterious lady, dies following a hemorrhage. She has been very good to Ashtoresh and has given her many beautiful gifts. She has also protected her from the amorous advances of an Englishman named JACK SMYTHE, who writes books about the women he woos. Following Mona's death, Ashtoresh learns that her lovely roommate was rather notorious music hall entertainer in Paris.

A few hours after Mona's beautiful body is taken ashore at Guadeloupe, the boat puts in at Dominica. Wandering alone about the streets, Ashtoresh sees a white man coming toward her and recognizes him as HOLIS HART, her millionaire employer. They are both delighted and exceedingly surprised.

They go to a little tea house for ice cream and Ashtoresh tells the exciting story of the voyage. Some passengers from the boat drop in and ignore her so pointedly that Ashtoresh is impelled to confess that they all treat her like the dirt beneath their feet.

"But why?" demands Mr. Hart in dumbfounded astonishment.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV

Ashtoresh wrung her hands nervously.

"I'll tell you why," she cried.

"The reason—that's what they think."

"But why?" he demanded. "And why do you care, my dear? They look like very dull people to me."

"Pious and all that. But a bit stupid, should think, to your way of thinking."

"They are?" she cried. "That's just it. They're stupid as they can be."

"But what have you done to them?" he asked. "And what makes you think they don't like you?"

Ashtoresh controlled her voice with difficulty. They were only a few feet away.

"I haven't done a single thing," she said. "It was Mona. Poor darling Mona. I didn't tell you all about Mona, Mr. Hart. She was—well, I suppose you'd call her an adventuress. A music hall entertainer in Paris and rather notorious, I'm afraid."

"But you see I didn't know that, and we were together all the time. Mona gave me presents, Mr. Hart. She said that was why I was so fond of her, but that isn't true. I'd have liked her just as much if she'd never given me a blessed thing. But, anyhow, we were together so much I suppose they thought I was like Mona, too. Anyhow they... well, what I'm trying to say is... they never so much as opened their mouths to either of us."

Mr. Hart smiled.

"I wouldn't worry too much about what other people say if I were you, Miss Ashe," he declared. "Particularly if they happen to be people you don't care about. Mona seemed to have been a gay lady who died gallantly. These good souls have never lived gaily, I am sure. I hardly think they're worth considering."

Ashtoresh sighed.

"Maybe you're right," she acknowledged. "Anyhow I hate them."

"Well, then let's talk of something else," he proposed. "I'd love to show you around a bit."

They stood up together and he took her arm.

He looked very slim and tall and handsome in whites. Ashtoresh thought he looked at Julius Caesar might have looked if he had worn trousers and a hat. She had seen a bust of him once at the Museum, and thought he had the nicest, leanest profile of antiquity.

She had read somewhere that Caesar was the ideal correspondent of every fashionable divorcee in Rome and a perfect devil with the ladies. You could tell it, somehow, just to look at him.... Now she was thinking how very like the great Roman Hollis Hart was. The same straight nose and thin lips. And a sort of quiet, humorous look. She wondered if they possessed any of the same attributes.

As they passed the table where the Simpsons and the Dunks and Mrs. Hatch sucked straws, she looked quite proud and possessive and leaned just a trifle on Mr. Hart. She elevated her chin and sailed past them like a queen.

When they reached the street, Hart chuckled.

"Good for you," he approved. "That's giving them all they ever gave you, I guess."

"Oh, you don't know," she exclaimed. "They've been so frigid!"

They strolled in silence for a while.

"You could never imagine how surprised I was to see you," she said finally. "Or glad," she added. "I thought you'd gone to South America. Sadie Morton told me so."

"That's where I started for," he explained. "I took a leisurely little coastwise vessel down through the islands and meant to go on from Trinidad on one of the bigger boats. But I stopped off here at Dominica and I don't seem to be able to get away. It is quite the loveliest place I've ever seen in the mountains. I mean. Of course you don't see a thing down here in the village."

By the way, how is Sadie Morton?"

Ashtoresh flushed.

"Oh, she's fine," she said. "She has some other girls living with her now and she's still in the apartment."

"I told my attorney," he remarked carelessly, "to make whatever settlement she wanted. And then I thought I'd rather look out for a while."

He smiled reminiscently.

"That little girl taught me a lesson," he admitted. "I'm going to be a very careful fellow after this."

"Well," Ashtoresh hardly knew what to say. "Sadie has such a way of appealing," he finished lamely.

"Sixty-one," he murmured. "I'm not going to say a word about it. But I thought I'd mention it to you."

"Oh, no," Ashtoresh interjected. "Sadie isn't foolhardy. She's, quite smart, really. Only it's not to your standards. Mr. Hart. That is, she doesn't know anything about conversation, or books, or new ideas, even. She hasn't any education, or culture, or background, or any of those things. But — you know, I should think you'd consider her rather smart — she took $11,000 away from you."

Hollis Hart threw back his head and laughed.

"That's not smart," he said. "There are a million gold-diggers out there. When a girl's smart, she marries a man."

"Oh." . . . That was certainly an idea. Ashtoresh revolved it in silence.

"I'm living in a little house up on the mountains," he said. "A shack, rather. But the view from there is gorgeous — simply beyond words. And I've a cook who prepares the most wonderful native dishes. I'm wondering what time the boat leaves. Do you suppose you'd have time to come and call on me? You'd enjoy it, I know."

"Oh, I'd love to!"

Ashtoresh clasped her hands, like a little child.

"That would be lots of fun. How far is it?"

"Well, we take a car to the foot of the mountain. It's a half-hour. My groom is waiting there with a horse. I could probably get another horse in town somewhere, and a man to ride him out. Then we'd motor along and pick them up."

"But I don't ride!" Moaned Ashtoresh.

"That's all right," he assured her. "Nobody does much real riding in this country. The mountain is so steep that the horses only crawl. It takes an hour or so to get up. And you should stay for two hours any how. If we have four or five hours now, we can do it quite comfortably."

Ashtoresh had been thinking quickly. It was five o'clock now. The boat left at eight. There were two warning whistles — one an hour before sailing, and another a half-hour before. She would miss the boat! That wretched, hateful boat, where everyone was so perfectly miserable to her. She would go with Mr. Hart to his little house on the mountain — and then —

"That's absolutely perfect!" she cried. "The boat doesn't leave until midnight. We'll have seven whole hours."

They would be safely out of hearing, she reflected, before the warning whistles blew. Mr. Hart would never suspect. She could tell him there was some terrible mistake — that she was positively sure the pursuer said midnight. Oh, she could get out of it, all right. When they came down the mountain, the boat would have left!

"And what," he demanded that sobering little voice that pious people call Conscience, "What will happen then?"

But Ashtoresh shut her ears to its tiresome questioning. She felt suddenly very gay and very young, and more adventurous than ever before. As if her soul had put away its make-believe wisdom — and all its silly little pretensions — and donned, by miracle, a jester's twinkling cap and fluttering skirts.

"I'm happy!" rejoiced her soul. "Oh, I'm so happy! And something just beautiful is going to happen!"

Mr. Hart was delighted. He called a little black boy, and spoke to him in patois.

"I've told him to get us a horse," he told Ashtoresh. "and have him ridden out to the foot of the mountain. Now we'll get a car, and I'll begin to show you the sights."

What becomes of Ashtoresh's mad impulse? Will she regret having so liberally missed the boat?

To Stop A Cough

That "Hangs On"

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be made at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good — children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this home-made remedy loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which usually follow the "flu," are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in refined, reliable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

NEW FASHIONS A PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN BEAUTY HINTS

HELPING OTHER WOMAN TO GET AHEAD, CLUB AIM

New York (AP)—A new philanthropy among business women—helping others get ahead—has been proposed by Lena Madelin Phillips, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Her plan, whereby 500 women during a three month period will take upon themselves the task of promoting 2,500 other women in business and the professions, has been presented to the contact group for the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries.

New York will be the locale of the experiment, the federation announces. Fifty women of the contact group will captain the teams, which consist of ten women each. Every team member will select from among her own acquaintances five business or professional women whose products or abilities she believes are worth promoting. Then during the next three months she will attempt to advance their interests.

"If she writes to a friend, for example," states the federation, "she will tack on a postscript saying: 'By the way, have you tried Miss B's homemade candies? They are the most delicious I have ever eaten.' Or perhaps she will recommend a tea room, or call attention to a woman doctor or lawyer. But wherever she goes, and whatever she does, she will have uppermost in her mind the five women to whose promotion she is pledged."

Each prospective customer is to be asked to state, as she makes her purchase, that she is a member of the "prosperity syndicate." Then before the end of the three-month period each team member will get in touch with the five friends she has endeavored to promote and find out how much business they have obtained through the "syndicate's" operations.

"Team captains will report their findings at a meeting March 11," the federation states, "and if the plan has succeeded in New York City the syndicate will be expanded to nationwide proportions."

Beige Continues To Hold Preferred Place

A beige lace gown from Mag-Helly is charmingly correct for spring evening wear.

For the afternoon a beige cloth coat from Mag-Helly has fox dyed beige to collar it.

BY ROSETTE
PARIS. — It is curious how beige continues to hold its own in spite of the efforts of the couturiers to replace it by such colors as red, blue and vanilla. These were obviously launched to try and dethrone beige, apparently without avail, although we have all called it common and lacking in distinction.

Experience has taught us that there is an infinite variety of beige and the ingenuity of French manufacturers is never at fault to find something new. They have recently created for a few of the leading couturiers certain exclusive shadings in beige that can never be found in a store and the whole crux of the question evidently rests in that fact. If a beige ensemble worn by a smart woman is easily distinguishable from the other shades seen on the street, that beige will always look aristocratic. The thing was to find this out.

AGAIN—BEIGE PREFERRED!
A Chanel ensemble in one of those exclusive beiges was seen a few days ago worn by a well-known society woman who was lunching at the Ritz. The color scheme was carried out even to the close-fitting toque and shoes, and the sweater possessed the only touch of color in the form of red, blue and yellow stripes disposed around the shoulders in a yoke effect. Chanel has repeated these stripings in the lining of her coats accompanying such ensembles, and effect is undoubtedly smart. Although such an ensemble in red, blue or a dark brown would look equally smart, beige invariably seems to have the preference.

Beige has even invaded the realm of evening gowns and quite a fair number of gowns in this color now can be seen, even at formal functions. Paton's robe de style in beige tulle grading from dark to light has been very successful, and even dresses

"IF I WERE PRESIDENT" BY WOMAN AUTHOR

BY ALLENE SUMNER
"If I Were President," writes Kathleen Norris, "I would expect to endure the laughter—the ready, scornful laughter of the cartoonists and columnists and editorial writers, who would have the Senate chamber draped in dainty frilled curtains, the Army and Navy regaled at Pink Teas, and the Chief Executive keeping the nation waiting while she dandled the cook's baby and discussed that hint of garlic in the Hollandaise sauce."

I wonder, I'm rather inclined to doubt that the first woman president would receive such hilarious treatment after all. I believe that by the time there is one, the nation will be ready for her and know that in "kidding" her it is "kidding" itself who made her possible.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Tangerine oranges, cereal, cream, creamed potatoes, broiled cottage ham, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Scalloped lima beans and Spanish onion, tomato and banana salad, toasted muffins, milk, tea.

DINNER—Rabbit pie, baked winter squash, curly endive and celeriac salad, apple snow pudding, milk, coffee.

A garnish of pickled beets adds much to the dinner salad. The beets can be cut in fancy shapes or finely chopped and sprinkled over the thinly sliced celeriac. Either French or mayonnaise dressing can be used but for this particular meal mayonnaise is a good choice since the rest of the dinner is not heavy.

TOMATO AND BANANA SALAD
Four hot-house tomatoes, 3 bananas, 1 head celery, lettuce, mayonnaise.

Peel tomatoes and cut in slices. Line a salad bowl with lettuce leaves which have been carefully washed and crisped. Arrange slices of tomatoes on bed of lettuce and over them place bananas cut in slices. Sprinkle with celery cut in short match-like pieces and serve at once with mayonnaise.

If fresh tomatoes are not procurable a tomato jelly can be made from canned ones. The bananas and celery can be added to the jelly when stiffening or the stiff jelly can be cut in slices and the salad arranged in the same way the fresh vegetables are used.

Some children who refuse to drink their allotted glasses of milk thoroughly enjoy it if served in a little pitcher with small goblet and allowed to pour it out themselves.

American Co-Eds Social Not Serious Say Guests

Nancy Samuel (left) and Leonora W. Lockhart. . . "American college girls are more social, less intellectual."

NEW YORK—"American college girls are not so seriously interested in their college work as English girls."

"Americans seem utterly unconcerned with the politics of their country, in extreme contrast to their English cousins."

"American college girls seem motivated by utilitarian purposes; that is, they go to college, apparently, because the training helps them in their careers or because it is the thing to do socially. In England, girls go for intellectual reasons."

These are some of the comparisons stated by Nancy Samuel and

WATCH BLINKS, STYES AND THAT EYE RUBBING

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
A rule parents can tell if children have anything wrong with their eyes, but not always. I knew a girl who reached fourteen before it was thought necessary to have her eyes examined.

When she got her glasses and went to school the next day, she acted as though she was seeing a circus for the first time.

She came home in great excitement and cried as she opened the door, "Mother, I saw the blackboard today!" Her mother determined to investigate the exact meaning of this. See the blackboard. She should hope so!

So to school that afternoon she went and after dismissal she and the teacher did some experimenting.

COULDN'T SEE BOARD AT ALL!
Absolute dismay possessed her, the teacher too, when they discovered that without glasses the child was literally blind as far as the blackboard work was concerned, even in the front seat.

As a matter of being thought stupid she had made a bluff at pretending she saw people when she didn't. She thought all people saw as poorly as she did.

Most large cities now have a free school clinic that tests eyes as well as ears, nose and throat, but not all.

If a teacher notices vision discrepancies and sends word home, don't become indignant, good parents. She may be only guessing and she may be wrong, but she may have noticed trouble that has escaped you.

Don't allow a child to keep on rubbing his eyes day after day without trying to discover the cause.

It may be irritation of the conjunctive, the fine membrane that lines the eyelids, but if it does not disappear after a few days of bathing with mild boracic solution or other good eye-wash, be sure it comes from strain. Take your child off to a good eye doctor as soon as possible.

WATCH THOSE BLINKS
Blinking may be habit, but I never have seen children blink who hadn't good cause for it.

Cross eyes! There is a thing that certainly should be attended to while your child is young. So much can be done, even without an operation. Treatment and glasses work wonders.

Styes have a cause. If they become chronic, it is likely that strain is responsible.

Often children have to wear glasses only for a year or two, seldom permanently, unless the trouble is serious. Muscular astigmatism is one of the things that can be cured if taken early.

Drapery Do and Don'ts

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth of a series of articles written for the Post-Crescent and NEA Service by William H. Wilson, vice-president of the American Furniture Mart, and an acknowledged authority on interior decoration and period furniture.

BY WILLIAM H. WILSON
DRAPERIES, like all decorations and furnishings, have two functions; use and beauty. The rays of outdoor sunlight must be softened and mellowed. They must impart a homelike air to the room, and be a part of it, without obtruding. The curtains must observe the laws of proportion, so that they are pleasing within and without. And they must leave room for fresh air!

Draperies must harmonize with the room they adorn. Their color must not be more intense than the deepest shade in the room's upholstery, nor weak enough to be insipid by contrast to the combined colors of the ensemble.

Chintz has become the favorite stuff for draperies, in both costly and inexpensive homes. Gay flower-sprigged chintzes, cretonnes and hand-blocked linens are available in a wide variety of prices and are infinitely preferable to heavily fringed velvets, mediocre silks or decorative masks. Deft blue or mulberry shades are especially good now.

Above all, the curtains must be appropriate to the spirit of the room. In a large Tudor room of massive oak, prints depicting an English fox hunt are in keeping. The new "art moderne" furniture should be shown against an appropriate background, splashes of color or silver. Scenes from the American colonies are available in scenic prints which would go nicely in a Colonial home.

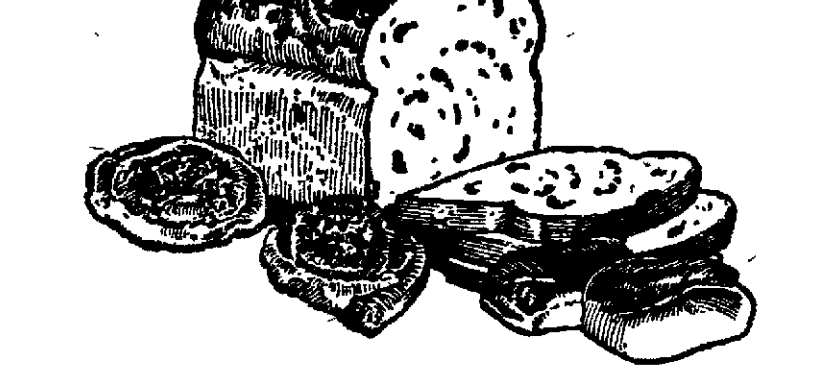

To set off these draperies, glass curtains of marquisette or swiss muslin are popular and are considered proper. These should be hung on separate poles so they may be drawn together if need be. Attractive poles of contrasting colors, preferably the shade of the room, or upholstery set off the drapes nicely.

Vainances are permissible for long windows—never for short ones. But be they flat or ruffled, the lines of the room. The glass curtains (the muslin ones close to the window) should never be draped back. The inside curtains may be looped up, if there is no break in the line which appears out of harmony with the lines of the room.

sacreligious to use the blood and history of our forebears to make a Roman holiday in the way of spring frocks. But after all, if lovely raiment can be lovely and also retell the story of our nation's rich past, more power to it!

ANTIBES TAN
The newest hosiery shade is Antibes tan, which is the correct tone to wear with all the off-whites. It also is good for evening with colorful shoes matching Midway's gown.

RETURNING GUIMES
Guimés are in again! The woman clever with her needle can add much to her street frocks and suit blouses by fashioning little hand-made dainties to dress up her neck.

The food editors of leading magazines, women who have studied baking all their lives, say that this is scientifically correct. They say that flour has a lot to do with the flavor of baked foods. The secret is in the wheat that is used in milling the flour. Pillsbury's Best is made only from certain kinds of carefully selected, full-flavored wheat. Chilly Reception Given Girl Preacher In N. Y.

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer
New York—"I am not against any creed, or fighting any particular evil. I simply point out the remedy for all sin and all evil—which is salvation. Accept Jesus and become reborn, then the way is clear!"

The speaker was no aged fundamentalist, nor world-weary pentecost. A child with curls like Mary Pickford used to have, and big, earnest brown eyes, she had reached the dignity of 13 years.

"I've been preaching since I was nine," said Helen Campbell. "Last year 1514 persons told me they owed their spiritual rebirth to me. I have conducted revival services in Toronto, Cleveland, St. Louis, Indianapolis and Detroit. And now I feel New York needs me."

GOT CHILLY RECEPTION
But New York apparently did not feel the need, and the 13-year-old evangelist decided to go down into Greenwich Village, which she had been told would stand a little old-fashioned religion to leave its to hemian way, and attempted to bring the gospel into several—ah—tea rooms.

But in only one place was Helen allowed to preach. One cafe manager suggested she would be just wasting her time in his place, because all his customers were respectable, and not interested in new fads. At another, the customers all put on their hats and coats, and some left without paying their bills when Helen mounted a table and began her message of uplift. They were afraid, one of them said, that it was a new type of raid. And Greenwich Village has been the scene of many a raid recently.

"If they could only know the truth," sighed Helen, "if they would only become converted, they would feel no need nor desire for worldly pleasures."

"I myself have gone to no theatres nor motion pictures nor dance halls since my conversion, and have read little except the Bible and my school books. And I am so happy—so much happier than those I see making a frantic effort to buy joy with gold. I can't eat all sin when God came into my heart."

It was suggested that possibly, on account of her youth and inexperience, Helen might not realize the temptations of the flesh and the trials of the spirit. But no—

"Before my conversion, I was on the stage in Seattle—I was a dancer. I yearned to be before the public all the time—to have them admire me and applaud me. When not performing myself, I went to the movies—always with a member of my family, of course."

"I felt abused if I had to have an evening at home. I wanted life and safety. To be sure, I was amused and often I enjoyed myself, but I had no conception of what peace and satisfaction a truly spiritual life would yield. Now that I know, nothing could lure me back into a worldly life."

Helen felt the call to preach immediately after her conversion. "I told my grandparents of it," she went on, "and they were amazed at my decision. They were incredulous of my ability, too, and asked me to deliver a sermon. I did. And they felt I should follow the call."

"So I studied the Bible and was ordained in the Undenominational Churches of America."

Helen is the only one in her family to be identified with the ministry. Her grandmother, Mrs. Lucy Fitzhenry, travels with her, and her uncle, Gordon Fitzhenry, is her manager.

CAN'T CONVERT FAMILY

She admits frankly that she has not been able to convert her own mother or father, who are separated, or her brother. Her father has never heard her preach, but her brother thinks he would like to travel with her, playing a cornet at her services. Helen studies with a private tutor, and has advanced to what is equivalent to the eighth grade in public school. All her inspiration comes directly from the Bible, she says, and preaching is easier for her than dancing. She is never so happy as when she is in the pulpit.

She says she has converted many young men, by her words, not her personality. It is her ambition to be a minister the rest of her life. She would like to have her own church, from which to conduct her revivals, like Amee McPherson.

KAUKAUNA ISN'T WORRYING ABOUT FEES FOR BUSSES

Present Licenses Won't Expire Until April, Aldermen Say

Kaukauna—The question of bus fees that is causing much trouble in valley cities is attracting little interest in Kaukauna. The matter was not mentioned at the council meetings and when the aldermen were asked about it they stated that they had not even thought about it. At the present time the bus fee is $25 for each bus for a year. This will not be renewed or changed until April and the aldermen are not bothering about it. They believe that by the time April arrived the trouble will be settled in the other cities.

The committee to investigate but terminals, composed of Aldermen W. H. Cooper, T. W. Linstrom, H. Wefenbach and E. Landreman, has nothing to report thus far. A report is to be made at the next council meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 22.

The proposed bus line between Kaukauna, Combined Locks and Appleton was looked upon with favor by the aldermen. Alderman Landreman stated that it would be a great help to men working at Combined Locks now forced to walk to work. He said that there are a number of Combined Locks children attending school in Kaukauna who would be helped by bus line.

TENNESSEE STUDIES ROAD CURING TESTS

Outdoor Laboratory Expected to Reveal Valuable Information

Memphis, Tenn.—(AP)—The most comprehensive series of concrete pavement curing tests yet undertaken are under way on the road between Memphis and Somerville, Tenn., to provide an outdoor laboratory for road curing problems.

The bureau of public roads is co-operating with the Tennessee department of highways and public works in the investigation, which has been planned to include practically every curing method which has received serious consideration.

The general scheme of the test is to cure one side of the pavement continuously with the state standard method, consisting of application of wet burlap for 24 hours followed by a two inch earth covering kept wet for ten days. For comparison with this standard curing the other side of the road has been divided into a series of sections, each consisting of a day's run or approximately 1,000 feet and each cured in a different manner.
Curing of concrete has been considered a highly important factor in road construction, and it is a point upon which highway engineers have

WOULD INCREASE TRADING MARKETS

Commodity Exchanges May Handle Security Business Also

New York—(AP)—Widespread public participation in security trading appears to have induced commodity exchanges to plan trading in securities as well as in cotton, coffee, sugar and other products.

Dealing in these and other commodities has felt the change in public attitude.

Proposal of the New York cotton exchange to establish trading in cotton mill securities is said to have received widespread approval in the textile sections of New England and the South.

Yields on many mill stocks are said to be high as compared with the majority of listed issues—and big yields always are an attraction for investors.

The plan also would benefit the mills by establishing an open market for their securities. The past few years have been far from bright in the cotton textile industry and lack

Wet burlap is used widely, but there is a difference of experience as to the length of time it should be applied. Some construction engineers apply wet burlap 24 hours, others 48, 72, or 96 hours without further curing. Others use silicic acid, sodium silicate, asphaltic emulsion, calcium chloride, coal tar, wet earth or tar paper. Each of these methods will be tested under similar conditions, and the road observed later as the effectiveness of the various treatments.

Detailed observations as to temperature, humidity, wind velocity, rainfall, condition of concrete and sub-grade are being made throughout the progress of the work.

FIELD EXPEDITION HUNTS BIG GAME IN ABYSSINIAN WILDS

Will Giraffe, Found only in That Country, Sought by Party

Chicago—(AP)—The Field Museum is sponsoring an African "big game hunt" with the principal objective the elusive reticulated giraffe, a gaudy quadruped found only in Abyssinia. Other mammals and birds, also, will be sought.

The expedition is financed by Harold White of New York and John Coats, of Ayrshire, Scotland. Both will be members of the party as well as C. J. Albrecht, a member of the museum's staff of taxidermists, and George Carey of Baltimore.

The sponsors hope to round out the results of the Chicago Daily News-Field Museum expedition of 1926 and 1927. The reticulated giraffe is one of the largest animals of Africa and his shyness and speed thwart hunters. Mounting the giraffe is one of the most difficult of taxidermy problems, according to Dr. Wilfrid Osgood, curator of the museum.

At the time White and his companions sailed from New York Oct. 18, a camel caravan moved across Africa and into Abyssinia with supplies for the explorers. White and the others will overtake the camel train before it reaches the interior destination.

White and Coats will go to the latter's estate in Scotland before turning their course toward Africa. They will fly from Scotland to Marseilles, France, where they will embark for the southern continent. Coats was a British airman during the World War, and a billet companion of Vernon Castle, the dancer, who was killed in training.

Albrecht will return to the United States in about 10 months, while White and Coats will invade the elephant and buffalo country of the Sobat river district for further hunting.

White, a former Syracuse University football star, has hunted in India, Indo-China, Yunnan and Szechuan, China. Besides the giraffe the party will seek black-maned lions, rhinoceroses and antelope.

POWER FISHING

of capital has been blamed for some difficulties.

Mills have been dependent largely upon bankers for their financing and loans have been costly. With a market for cotton mill securities, however, it is believed they could do much of their own financing and be able to dispose of their securities for this purpose when and as needed.

Somewhat similar ideas have led the New York coffee and sugar exchange to consider a plan for establishing a market in sugar company securities.

THE TOUGHEST OLD COUGH CAN NOW BE STOPPED

Lingering coughs—the kind that hang on and hang on and make a man of his sleep—the kind that makes him peevish and all worn out.

Those are the breed of coughs that prove that common cough syrups are about as useful as a bottle of ginger pop.

The quickest and surest way to get rid of a persistent cough is to take a teaspoonful of Broncholine Emulsion four times a day.

It's made to stop the old-timers—the tough ones—and it does it without any loss of time.

For ordinary coughs one or two doses is usually enough. Schiltz Bros. 3 stores Appleton and Menasha and dealers everywhere can supply you.

EXCESS ACID SICKENS--GET RID OF IT!

Sour stomach, indigestion, gas. These are signs which usually mean just one thing: excess acid. The stomach nerves have been overstimulated. Too much acid is making food sour in the stomach and intestines.

The way to correct excess acid is with an alkali. The best form of alkali for this purpose is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Just take a spoonful of this harmless, almost tasteless preparation in a glass of water. It works instantly. The stomach becomes sweet. You are happy again in five minutes! Your heartburn, gas, headache, biliousness or indigestion has vanished!

Know Phillips' Milk of Magnesia and you're through with crude methods forever. It is the pleasant way—the efficient way to alkalize the system; to relieve the effects of over-acidity.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia has been standard with doctors for over 50 years. 25c and 50c bottles at all drug stores. Be sure you get the genuine.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered trade mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1874.

Germany Leads World In Reptile Shipments

Berlin—(AP)—Recent strength in the crocodile market has centered attention on the world's largest clearing house for fish and reptiles, located in Berlin.

Thousands of water animals and amphibians arrive here annually from all parts of the globe to be sold and shipped with care, "this end up," to every continent. Following the extraordinary demand for crocodiles, which totaled 700 from March to August, an unprecedented boom for turtles has set in. These sedate travelers have become fashionable as house pets.

Unfortunately, however, this year's supply from Greece, which is the principal turtle market, proved inadequate as a result of the severe winter and following dry summer in that country, so that instead of the 20,000 specimens ordered only 3,000 have come to hand.

A reported epidemic among the tree frogs of Louisiana also tended to stiffen prices, for these little green chaps popularly believed to be infallible weather prophets.

At present the great attractions at this firm are two electric eels, each two meters long and with a diameter of a man's arm, which are guaranteed to paralyze for several days any human hand touching them.

But by far the most profitable business is done with goldfish of which more than 1,000,000 pass through Berlin annually, the principal source being Italy. The best customers are England and the Scandinavian countries where at special markets from 4,000 to 5,000 are sold weekly.

Among an average of 100 bidders for different kinds of reptiles there are never more than 5 or 6 prospective buyers of poisonous snakes which as a rule are only negotiated for the various zoos. Recently, however, an ardent snake fancier insisted upon buying a rattlesnake and meeting with a refusal applied to the chief of police and ultimately to the minister of the interior by a certificate testifying that it was an urgent necessity for him to have a snake. But the authorities assumed that such a grotesque craving could only spring from a deranged mind and refused his request.

PIGS GROW LEAN

Kansas City—Even pigs are being forced into the "leaner column." No less an authority than E. Z. Russell, swine inspector for the Department of Agriculture, says that pigs are being forced to reduce. The reason, he says, is "this prosperous country demands high priced pork and since it has fat has met serious competition in vegetable fats." It remains for the pig to produce more meat and less grease.

CAT WENT HOME

Annan, Scotland—Cats come back even in this land of supposed extreme conservatism. A black cat accompanied a family to Farnara, 100 miles away, and became lost. But 11 days later the familar "meow" was again heard at a home here.

FORMER FOE SAYS HE IS FOR KOHLER

Kewaunee Progressive Leader Pleads for Coopera- tion With New Governor

Madison—(UP)—Anton G. Schauer, Kewaunee, long-time supporter of the principles of Robert M. La Follette, Thursday issued a statement pleading cooperation of the legislature with the new governor, Walter J. Kohler, conservative Republican. Mr. Schauer and D. V. Smith, Jefferson, were the two Progressive assemblymen whose votes turned the tide of ballots to conservative Charles B. Perry and virtually elected him speaker.

Mr. Schauer said he still considers himself a Progressive and intends to vote with that division of the party throughout the session and as long as measures that group approves are compatible with his ideas of worth while legislation.

He issued a statement, however, endorsing Gov. Kohler's message and asking a shortening of the session by members cutting down on bills, except those they are certain are beneficial to the state.

PRaises MESSAGE

Assemblyman Schauer found the governor's message "a commendable document—well worthy of careful perusal for it contains many valuable suggestions which I believe, if carried out, will be of inestimable value to the state. It may be that all of his recommendations will not be carried out at this session but even if only a few are favorably acted upon it will be a start in the right direction and these acts will receive unanimous sanction of a large majority of the people of our great and glorious commonwealth."

The Kewaunee county farmer-banker-assemblyman, who Progressive leaders in Madison said had been allied with their cause for at least 20 years, has planned an address on the floor presenting his views on cooperation with the administration. Parliamentary rules however, would probably have prevented its presentation except on a point of personal privilege. So he decided to make his text public.

It expressed the hope that his statement would be "accepted in the same spirit in which it is given."

"Upon us will depend what the history of the 1929 legislature will be," he said—"whether it will be a business-like session and worthwhile things accomplished or whether we are going to be dilly-dallying here until the snow flies next fall; whether we are going to play politics figuring who the next governor and United States Senator will be or whether we get down to business, pass sensible laws for which there is a demand and adjourn within a reasonable time."

WORK IN HARMONY

"One great reason for the prolonged sessions is that some members believe they must introduce bills regardless of their merit, to have the folks at home say they are effective legislators."

"I intend to introduce no bills except those asked by some constituents. Then I shall consult other members for their views and only introduce a bill if it appears to them to have some basis of public necessity. I shall refuse to introduce a measure, in other words, unless it conforms to my ideas of good state legislation and to the same ideas of other members."

"One important thing must not be overlooked and that is that the legislative and executive departments must work together in harmony, if they would accomplish things worth while."

"Experience shows this to be true in all lines of business and it holds equally true here. The governor has given us many worthwhile suggestions and as long as they can be carried out with justice to all the people of the state I can see no reason why they should not have our united support."

STAGE And SCREEN

"THE MASKS OF THE DEVIL"

A graphic plumbing of human souls in the torment of love and one of the most remarkable "dual personality" narratives of all times is now being unrehearsed at Brin's Appleton Theatre, where John Gilbert is starring in "The Masks of the Devil," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, shown in conjunction with the evening performance of the Edith Ambler Stock Co. and at the daily photo-play matinee.

The picture is unlike anything ever before produced on the silver sheet; it violates all rules of dramatic construction in its daring audacity in telling the truth about human nature—and as a result it is one of the most gripping, haunting human documents an audience has ever seen. John Gilbert, master craftsman in the art of depicting the extreme human emotions and Victor Seastrom, the Swedish genius who directed this dramatic cross-section of human souls, both achieve distinctive triumphs. The audience sits spell-bound, watching from the "inside" the very operation of the human mind and heart.

Gilbert plays a wealthy dilettante with two natures, good and bad, constantly struggling with each other, as, psychologists say, human natures always do. By a unique trick in photography, the two natures are reflected, alternately, on the face of the actor and by superb acting he makes the optical trick a masterpiece in delineation.

WONDERFUL SETTINGS
Gorgeous settings, showing Europe at its gayest, embellish the production, for the story takes place in gay, pleasure-loving Vienna of the present day and keeps up the atmosphere of the frantic quest for pleasure as pursued by the aristocracy of the Old World. A magnificent cast was

DEBATERS BATTLE MARINETTE TEAM

Squad, Delayed by Derailed Train, Reaches Northern City Late in Day

The first series of debates by the senior high school squad were completed Monday when the Appleton Negative team met the Marinette affirmative team at Marinette. The debate which was scheduled for Monday afternoon had to be given in the evening without an audience, as the Appleton debaters, whose train was delayed by a derailment and snow drifts, did not arrive in Marinette until 6 o'clock.

The value of the direct primary system of nominating candidates for office was the question argued. The affirmatives based their case on the contention that the direct primary was not theoretically sound because it encourages fraud and corruption and emphasized the large sums of money which must be spent by the candidates. The affirmative claimed that 27 states had made moves to abolish the direct primary.

The Appleton team proved that the direct primary was sound theoretically because there is no necessity for large expenditures in campaigns and that men like Smith, Vare, even though they spent close to a million dollars, did not get the offices because public opinion would not allow it. It also was contended that the direct primary exposes corruption rather than fosters it.

Paul Hackburt and Lawrence Osterhaus, represented Appleton and Eleanor Comyne and Irvin Peih Marinette. They were accompanied by their coach Miss Agnes Huberitz and Miss Catherine Haman, also a member of the squad, who acted as timekeeper.

The Appleton team has had a successful season.

POSTMASTER SEEKING FARMERS' COOPERATION

Pointing out that it is impossible to serve rural patrons of the post-office 100 per cent because of practically impassable roads in many sections of the county, Fred F. Wettengel, acting postmaster, this week urged farmers to help keep highways open.

"Only through the cooperation of our patrons in the country can we possibly serve them all at this time of year, despite the fact that we want to keep our service up to maximum," Mr. Wettengel said. "Roads on several routes are not open to traffic in some places, but if farmers will help to the extent of only driving teams through such places, the drifts would be opened sufficiently to let our carriers through."

All rural carriers are using cutters now. Instead of returning to the city about 1 o'clock in the afternoon from their routes, they do not get back until about 6 o'clock in the evening and sometimes it is much later, according to postal officials.

CHURCH COUNCIL MEETS

The monthly meeting of the Mount Olive Lutheran church council was held in the church parlors at 7:30 Monday evening. Issues to be presented at the next congregational meeting and regular business matters were discussed.

The latest wonder of agriculture, is a cabbage plant which produced six heads of cabbage in turn, one above the other.

-- avoid "dosing" FLU

How best to use Vicks VapoRub

- 1. As a Preventive
Several times a day, insert Vicks up the nostrils, also melt a little night and morning in a bowl of boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors.
- 2. If a Cold Starts
If possible, go home and go to bed. Apply hot wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel.
Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.
Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body to throw off the cold more quickly.
- 3. After a Flu Attack
Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after influenza. Then, more than ever, colds attacking the weakened system may lead to bronchitis, sinus-trouble or pneumonia. This is especially true of children or old folks.
Heed even the slightest cold as a danger signal and treat it promptly without "dosing."

IT'S ALL OVER FOR JOHNNY AND ETHEL

The farewell appearance of Johnny Welsmuller and Ethel Lackie as members of the famed Illinois Athletic Club swimming team was made recently when these two aquatic stars gave a final exhibition match. It was a sad day for Bill Zachrach, coach, at the right above, who handled the two stars as youngsters and saw them rise to worldwide fame. C. F. Biggart, president of the athletic club, is shown here, at left, presenting Welsmuller with a watch as a fond remembrance of his services. Miss Lackie, as you probably know, is the young lady in the photo.

ROOM "ADS" COVER CAPITAL BULLETIN

Legislators Find Rooming Places at Legislature Goes into Session

Madison — (AP) — Bulletin boards outside the halls of the state and assembly are decked these days with the advertisements for rooming places. There were 36 printed cards, pencilled "want ads" and handprinted notes to legislators on the Assembly bulletin board as the legislature resumed work Tuesday.

Senators, as a class, appear more affluent and generally take hotel rooms. The $500 per session salary generally makes Assemblymen dole all but the family home in the capital, and seek comfortable quarters near the Capitol square in private homes. Many of the bulletin board advertisements are for small eating houses "close in."

Later the bulletin boards are almost covered with notices of committee hearings on bills.

Madison — (AP) — Two major state officers who have been ill are on their way back to work.

Milton A. Freedy, commissioner of insurance, who was seriously ill with an ailment affecting a limb, is understood to be so improved that he is expected back in a fortnight or more.

Hugh A. Minahan, deputy attorney general, who has suffered an attack of influenza or some similar disease, was to have returned to work Tuesday.

Madison — (AP) — The first Assembly calendar, by which attention of the members is called to the current day's business, came out Tuesday, on the sheet, entirely lacking legislative memoranda. It carried only the order of business, which is called off by the speaker, or in the Senate the president, as each one of the items is completed.

Roll call, correction of the journal, motions may be offered, reception of resolutions for revision, reception of bills for revision, introduction and reference of resolutions, same for bills petitions and communications, reports of standing committees, executive communications, messages from the Senate, motions for consideration, resolutions for consideration, bills for engrossment, bills to be ordered to third reading, bills for third reading.

It is on this last order of business that the speaker's question is "Shall the bill pass?"

FOUR STATES VOTE BIG HIGHWAY ISSUES

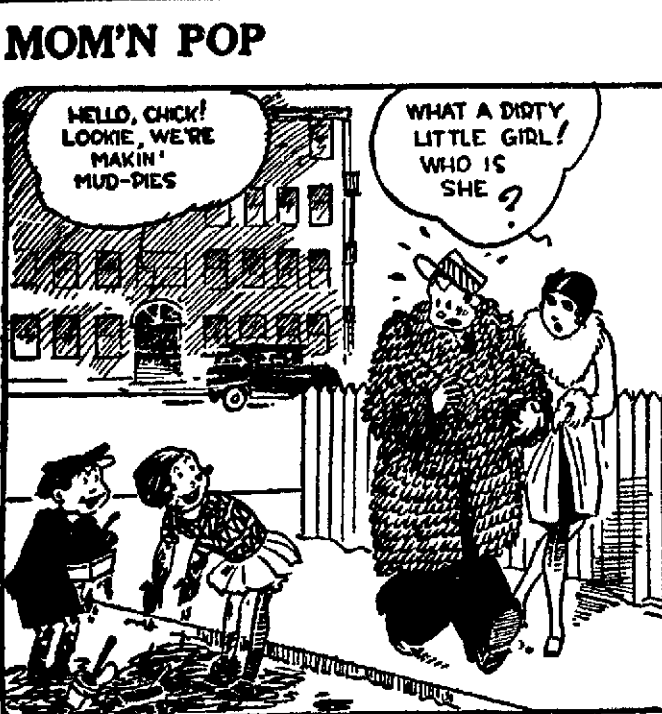

Iowa, Louisiana, Missouri and West Virginia Have Big Road Programs

Chicago — (AP) — Four states will undertake gigantic road building projects in 1929 as the result of bond issues, totaling $240,000,000 approved by voters in the November election.

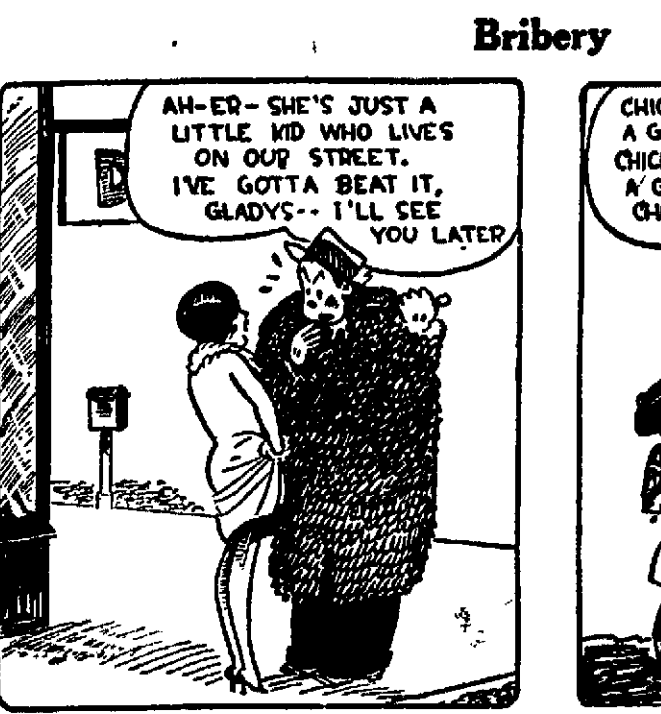

Iowans are preparing to "get out of the mud" at an even faster rate than during 1928 as the result of a $100,000,000 bond issue approved by the electorate. The bonds will make possible the improvement of 6,600 miles in the states primary system, and the taking over of $60,000,000 indebtedness voted by 6

"Men Of The South Pole"

When Shackleton's ship was smashed to fragments in the sea ice, his party managed to save a large quantity of food and gear, as well as their three boats. Adrift, with half a world of sea and ice between them and safety, they floated for three months at the mercy of wind and currents.

They caught seals and ate the flesh and drank the oil from the blubber. They killed and ate their dogs.

All but the indispensable property was thrown away. Men emptied their pockets of gold and silver.

From time to time the ice cracked and broke up, sometimes in the middle of the night beneath a tent, carrying away a man in his sleeping bag. Sometimes huge grampuses, charged up from below, smashing the ice. Once a leopard mounted the ice, but was shot and eaten.

LEAGUE WILL BACK CLINIC DURING YEAR

Civic Organization Sponsors Welfare Activity—to Be Aided by Rotarians

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — Members of the New London Civic Improvement league voted Monday evening to support the Child Welfare Clinic for at least one year.

The clinic has been in operation in this territory during the past year, the major portion of the cost having been borne by Waupaca-co. with the understanding that if the clinic were to be continued further costs must be paid by one or more local organizations. During 1928 the league paid for minor expenses.

Assisting the New London Civic Improvement league in paying expenses of the clinic will be the New London Rotary club. Other civic organizations also have been asked to contribute, and it is expected that additional funds will be forthcoming from these sources.

ROTARIANS TOLD ABOUT GOLD RUSH

Dr. Hemmy Tells Club Members About Colorful Days of 1898 in Alaska

New London — Dr. C. D. Hemmy detailed his experiences during the gold rush days of Alaska Monday noon for the benefit of the Rotary club at its weekly luncheon. He described his personal experiences during the colorful days of 1898.

Dr. Hemmy outlined his routes on a map which portrayed the entire gold rush territory, and discussed his experiences at Cripple Creek, Nome, and along the Yukon river.

HORSE FORCED TO RACE WITH TRUCK THRU NEW LONDON

New London—An undertaker's truck to which a horse was hitched careening madly down N. Water-st. doing it best to keep up the unusual pace, caused considerable consternation to pedestrians. An explanation of the situation showed that Andy Laib, a rural route mail carrier had tied his horse to Mr. Cline's truck instead of the postoffice as in his usual custom. Mr. Laib dashed into the postoffice for a moment and in that moment Mr. Cline came out of his furniture store, started his truck and drove away with the astonished horse in tow. When the pace became to furious Mister Horse decided he had travelled enough and that his position and gait were unbecoming to an employee of Uncle Sam. The animal braced its legs and the bride came off his head just as a blanket from the Cline truck enveloped the horse's head. Bystanders recognizing the horse led it back to the postoffice.

PEARY POLE PARTY TO GET U.S. AWARD

Members of Expedition Receive no Recognition for 20 Years

Pittsburgh, Pa.—(AP)—The surgeon of the Peary expedition to the North Pole at last sees some hope of gaining governmental recognition for himself and his companions for their feat. In the nearly 20 years since the dash to the pole, the United States has conferred no awards upon Peary's men.

The surgeon, Maj. John Walter Goodsell, a world war veteran and practicing physician at Sandy Lake, Pa., has received a promise from Rep. Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania that a bill will be presented in congress for giving recognition to the expedition's service. Representatives Kelly introduced such a bill at a previous session, but it was tabled.

corded the Scott Antarctic expedition by the British government and similar awards by other governments to men who have assisted in "able achievements." Representative Kelly says, "It is a certainty on a bill that after more than 19 years of neglect has not been coming recognition to the Peary expedition. I have had the bill in the senate, and to be compared the day and suffered that commander Peary must plant Old Glory at the North Pole."

Confabs Still Keeping Hoover Busy At Capital

BY JAMES L. WEST
Associated Press Staff Writer
Washington — (AP)—President-Elect Hoover may find it necessary to linger on in the national capital for the greater part of this week in order to conclude his conferences with Republican leaders.

While the program for the enactment of farm relief and tariff revision legislation at an early extra session of the new congress has been agreed upon, Mr. Hoover still wants to see a number of senators and representatives on this and other subjects. He also has arranged conferences with national committeemen only a few of whom he has seen since his return here a week ago Monday.

Cabinet and other major appointments will form one subject matter at these meetings, but the president-elect seems to have made it fairly clear to his callers who have broached the question that he will not go into the problem of general patronage until after his return here the latter part of February.

The impression is growing upon those who frequent the Hoover suite at the Mayflower hotel that there will be no announcement of the cabinet until after Mr. Hoover returns from Florida.

Recognition of the south in the makeup of the cabinet is expected in view of the fact that three states in the old Confederacy went over to the Republican ticket. The name of G. Bascom Slem of Virginia, national committeeman, former member of congress and former secretary to President Coolidge, has been put forward.

Mr. Hoover had on Tuesday's program visits from two prominent Democrats, Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, the retiring minority leader in the house, and Representative John Garner of Texas, who will succeed to that post in the new congress. Mr. Garrett explained that the leadership of the minority merely desired to pay respects to the president-elect.

Others on the engagement list included Senator Watson of Indiana, who will be the Republican senate leader at the next session, and Republican National Committeeman George Vilts of Wisconsin.

WASHINGTON — (AP)—There will be a "dirty money" period for Americans when the process of exchanging the new small sized currency for the present issue begins about July 1.

Issue of the present sizes will be suspended April 30, a house committee was told by Herrick Bond, assistant treasury secretary in charge. Between that date and July 1, bills usually regarded as unfit for circulation and turned in by banks for treatment at the treasury money laundry or to be destroyed, will be kept at work.

"In that way this old size currency will be pretty thoroughly exhausted," Bond said. "It won't be wasted. It won't be called in and cancelled."

Some of the smaller bills of the old size will not serve their usual nine months, the treasury official said, but there will be a little loss in making

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoid serious kidney disorders.

Bill Proposes to Buy Post-office Building at Madison for Purpose

Madison (AP)—The possibility of the state's purchasing the present Madison postoffice building for additional capitol space was brought before the senate Tuesday during a 15 minute session in which 11 bills and joint resolutions were received.

Senator Walter H. Hunt, Progressive, would give municipalities and light and power districts the right to construct new public utility plants even though they are in competition with existing privately-owned utilities.

The capitol housing problem was brought in by Senator W. S. Goodland, Racine, in a joint resolution asking for a committee from the two houses to study the need for additional space and to consider whether it would be advisable to purchase the Madison postoffice when it is abandoned for a new structure, nearing completion.

Senator Goodland's resolution pointed out that the state is paying $40,000 annually for offices scattered about Madison.

GAS TAX BILL

A joint resolution by Senators Thomas J. Duncan, Milwaukee, and John E. Cashman, Denmark, would permit the voters to decide in the next April election, through referendum, whether they want a gasoline tax increase and whether it shall be a cent or 2 cent raise.

Senator John E. Cashman, Denmark, introduced a bill which provides that all school districts which have neither high school nor junior high school, shall offer two years in tuition beyond the eighth grade. State aid of $50 for each pupil in the course is provided.

A bill to provide an automobile license fee of $8, to be collected by county clerks and to provide a 3 cent gasoline tax, was introduced by Senator Hunt.

Other joint resolutions were: By Senator Duncan, calling for referendums in the April and November elections to change the constitution so that the legislature shall have no power to change the constitution without a referendum; and by Senator R. Bruce Johnson, Superior, asking congress to push negotiations with Canada on the St. Lawrence waterway and one by Duncan expressing appreciation to Mrs. Terry Andrae, Milwaukee, for her gift of Pine Dunes park in Sheboygan-co.

AIRMAIL SERVICE RESUMED TUESDAY

Plan Attempt to Clear Field of Snow to Permit Planes to Land

Following a day of inactivity Monday, airmail service between Milwaukee and Green Bay, via the Fox River valley, was resumed Tuesday morning, despite the fact that the majority of landing fields on airports along the way are buried under a heavy blanket of snow.

The mail plane arrived here from Milwaukee about 11:45 Tuesday morning, dropped the mail, and continued to Green Bay without stopping. Although a report from Milwaukee several days ago indicated that the Northwest Airways, Inc., was to equip its planes with skis, the mail plane which made the trip Tuesday still carried wheels, observers reported.

An attempt to clear a portion of the landing field to provide a large enough runway for planes to land was to be made Tuesday afternoon. A representative of the snow equipment manufacturing company of Dubuque, Ia., was in the city with a snow removing machine, and a demonstration of the machine was to be given at the airport Tuesday afternoon. The Dubuque man was here to demonstrate his machine to county highway officials, who have advertised for bids for two new snow plows and two trucks.

COLD CLINGS STUBBORNLY

Chicago (AP)—Zero weather, wearing a shawl of snow, continued her unwelcome visit to middle America Tuesday with little likelihood of her leaving for another day at least.

Snow covered most of the midwest, following Monday's heavy fall, making icy pavements in the cities and blocking railroads and highways in the open country.

There were half a dozen deaths attributable to the cold, and innumerable accidents. One of those critically injured in automobile crashes in Chicago was Lou Kosloff, one of the city's theatre orchestra leaders and entertainers. His skull was fractured.

The six-inch snowfall in Chicago offered a serious traffic problem, clogging streets and drives. Tons of snow were removed from the downtown streets during the day and Monday night, and were dumped into Lake Michigan. Outlying streets, however, afforded tedious and treacherous travel.

A Chicago and Northwestern railroad train was killed by a snow plow at Minnesota Junction, Wis., after a desperate struggle in which the plow was used for more than seven miles before finally dropping exhausted, in its whirling path.

New York (AP)—The north Atlantic states Tuesday were recovering from a cold wave which sent the temperature below zero in many places caused high winds and snow of blizzard proportions in several districts. One man was found frozen to death in Syracuse, N. Y., and another died of exposure in New York city.

RELIEF FROM COLD WEATHER PROMISED BY TOMORROW NIGHT

Mercury Dropped to 21 Degrees Below Zero Tuesday Morning

Relief from the extreme cold wave which prevailed here for the past week, is due to arrive here by Tuesday night, according to the weatherman. The mercury is expected to rise here Wednesday and temperatures were rising in the western states Tuesday morning. Snow is probable for this vicinity by Wednesday morning.

The mercury continued to drop Monday night and by Tuesday morning was at 21 degrees below zero, according to George Allanson, Measha, official weather reporter for this district. At 12 o'clock Tuesday noon the thermometer stood at 1 degree below zero. Winds are shifting from the position from northwest to the southwest, promising warmer weather.

The Chicago and Northwestern railroad company is "double-heading" all trains with two heavy engines this week to insure passenger and express movements, according to W. B. Basing, agent. Trains are running from one to two hours late.

In the last few days when one engine was used several trains were stalled on the main line, hampering traffic.

Freight shipments will be discontinued until the cold wave abates according to Mr. Basing. Several freight trains were stalled on the main line between Milwaukee and Green Bay, delaying passenger and express service. Perishable shipments were moved, and other shipments will be suspended indefinitely.

Telephone communication between Milwaukee and Green Bay again is in perfect working order since repair men have remedied breaks in wires between the two points, according to F. N. Belanger, acting district manager of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. Some difficulty was experienced during the past week because wires snapped according to Mr. Belanger.

CHARACTER REAL MEASURE OF VALUE

Bishop Smith Tells Students That Temptation Is Part of Life

Choosing as the subject of his talk "The Difficulty of the Spiritual Man," Bishop H. Lester Smith, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, addressed the Lawrence student body for the second time at Memorial chapel Tuesday morning.

"Temptation is a normal part of human life," said Bishop Smith. "Man was created a free agent because only by man's free choice could anything be done with his personal achievement. Character is achieved only by itself and by exercising freedom."

Bishop Smith then continued to point out that man is the only free thing in the universe, showing how the planets and all nature conform to the law of the whole.

"Compelled obedience protects society," he said, and it also protects the individual from his own unwisdom. "But compelled obedience is no moral and spiritual aid to the individual. It is better for society to teach that law has a majesty of its own and teach the individual to keep that law for its own sake and not by compulsion."

In conclusion Bishop Smith said that character is the final measure of value, not prominence or notoriety. "Anyone can be as good as he wants to be as long as he wants to be good."

CHIEF WARNS ABOUT ICY FIRE ESCAPES

Says Building Owners Should Shovel Snow and Ice from Steps

A warning that ice and snow covered fire escapes hardly serve their purpose, was addressed to owners of Appleton buildings Tuesday morning by Chief George P. McGillan, of Appleton fire department.

Fire escapes at the present time are covered with snow, the chief has noted, and as the temperature rises the snow melts and steps become encased in ice. Such a condition makes the fire escape highly dangerous, according to the chief, and therefore almost useless. Ice covered fire escapes, should they be needed at a moment's notice, are far more dangerous than an ice covered step at the entrance to a home.

Building owners and managers should see to it immediately that fire escapes on buildings over which they have authority are kept clear of snow and ice. If the need for this isn't appreciated by individuals, it is possible the fire chief will take action to have the exits cleared.

NOT MUCH HOPE FOR UNION OF FAITHS

Bishop Smith Opens "Preaching Mission" at Methodist Church

Declaring that religion is a personal possession, not an ecclesiastical commodity, Bishop H. Lester Smith delivered his first evening address of the week at the Methodist church Monday evening. Bishop Smith is conducting a series of evangelistic meetings at the church, giving addresses at the morning and evening, and holding religious conferences in the afternoon.

The speaker described religion as a spiritual power which comes into a man's life and combines with his personality, forming an interrelationship with God that expresses itself in his thoughts, speech and actions. He pointed the acquisition of spirituality to the process of amalgamation, saying, "the gold of God is flowing in inexhaustible quantities; its value depends upon how much of it we grasp."

The Bishop pointed out the reason for the many different churches, creeds and faiths, and stated that although there is great agitation for the unity of all faiths he did not believe that it would be possible to have perfect unity among the various churches. However, he was of the opinion that fundamentally all creeds should be unified, just as citizens of all the states of the United States are fundamentally Americans.

With the exception of the religious conferences which were to have been held on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, the evangelistic program will be carried on as scheduled. The next preaching mission service will be at 7:30 Tuesday evening at the Methodist church.

Dr. Richard Evans, district superintendent of the Methodist church presided at the meeting, and the church quartet sang several selections.

18-YEAR-OLD GIRL IS GRANTED DIVORCE

Less than 10 months after her marriage, Doris Kuhnke, an 18-year-old New London girl, was granted an absolute divorce by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Tuesday morning on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. The husband, Elmer Kuhnke, 21, Clintonville, did not contest the suit. There are no children.

The couple was married at New London April 7, and separated Oct. 20, 1928. A division of the household property will be made by the judge.

ENGINEERS WILL DISCUSS WASTE DISPOSAL AND RIVER POLLUTION

The flood of reservations for the Forum dinner of Appleton chamber of commerce Thursday evening at Hotel Northern indicated the meeting will be well attended, according to Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the chamber.

The speakers will be Dr. Clarence W. Baker, engineer for the American Pulp and Paper association, and L. F. Warrick, state sanitary engineer, both of Madison. They will discuss sewage and waste disposal and the latter speaker will supplement his address with motion pictures.

Members of the conservation societies in the city and members of the city council should be especially interested in the meeting, it is said. The addresses will interest the conservationists from the standpoint of river pollution, while city officials will be enlightened on sewage disposal.

BROADWAY STAGE STRUCK BY FAMINE AS THEATRES CLOSE

Two-thirds of Actors Are Jobless—People Flocking to "Talkies"

BY GILBERT SWAN

New York—Overshadowing every event on Broadway's sandy trail, the menacing cloud of theatrical famine hangs uncertainly—presaging either the worst storm in modern stage history or a bright dawn which will bring many important changes to the amusement business.

The condition of the theater is nothing short of critical. Something like two-thirds of the Actor's Equity membership is jobless. Variety, the theatrical weekly, places the army of unemployed at 15,000. Some 35 shows gave up the ghost immediately after the New Year holiday trade. Less than a third of Broadway's theaters are occupied and many of these hold productions which waver precariously on their toes.

TO THE RESCUE

As this is written, a committee has rushed into action to do something about it. It is headed by that stage-broke old producer, William A. Brady, who avers that "some intelligent and concerted action must be taken by the many associations related to the theater."

Meanwhile, the new talking pictures pack in the crowds and the movies do very well, thank you.

What's wrong? What is it all about? If you listen at the keyholes of the producers you will hear much chatter about the unions—particularly the unions of stage hands. Gilbert Miller, one Broadway figure, who tore up tent and went to London to produce, shrieked his protest against the mechanical costs faced. Experiment, one hears, is out of the question. The unions demand far more than is reasonable, one hears, and insists upon a ridiculous number of helpers for ordinary work. Sam Harris, for instance, wanted to rehearse a movie back drop for "Cangai," and was told that a crew of 12 would have to be hired. Hundreds of tales could be related of the woes of the managers where stage crews are concerned. The stage, of course, cannot compete with the movies, since it can show at but one theatre at a time, whereas a single film, whatever its fabulous cost, can be showing at thousands of theaters and putting on an endless number of performances.

TOO MANY THEATERS. There are other things, however, to be considered, as I see it. FIRST—Broadway has far too many theaters. For five or six years, also, there have been too many actors. Then, too, only a few theaters are in the hands of the producers or managers. Most of them are real estate ventures, like hotels or office buildings. The producers have been pretty much at their mercy. Furthermore, to keep the theaters filled, shows often have been turned out without much forethought.

SECOND—The public has been pretty much at the mercy of the theater scalper. Producers have carelessly let their tickets drift where they might, to be sure of disposal. Plays that are looked upon as potential successes are "bought up" by the agencies weeks in advance. The average ticket buyer gets but a smile at the average box office and has to pay twice the value of a ticket if he goes to a scalper.

Before this double burden was placed upon the theatergoer, the price was beyond the reach of the middle-class man. Its cost, at lowest, might have been $4.40 or $5.50. By the time the purchase has been made, the cost is from $8 upward per seat.

SO THEY GO TO MOVIES. And so the theater has lost the "average" man's business. He has grown tired of being held up. Particularly for a show that may have little or no worth. After all, the theater cannot be entirely supported by the out-of-town trade which, drifting in for a few days, does not question the expense. Tens of thousands who once attended the theater stay home at the radio or go to the movies—even when the movies are duller than the shows.

THIRD—The run of plays this season has been particularly bad. So bad, in fact, or just so-so, that the eager theatergoer has learned to wait a while and see what would happen. Because of the various conditions, a new array of unknown producers in Wall Street has provided backers and, without experience in play selection or production, a score of dramas have come and gone—most of them coming to the fantastic travesties on playwriting and performing.

Many of these newcomers, in order to get well-known performers, have boosted salaries of a few actors to the skies and made competition impossible. The "old timers" will tell you that.

Get Rid Of "Hell Weeks," Dean Urges Fraternities

Madison—(P)—Scott F. Goodnight, dean of men at the University of Wisconsin, believes the problem of the average fraternity is to rid itself of "hell weeks," debauchery, emphasis on social life rather than study, and the unsound economic basis on which business is conducted. These views are expressed in the current issue of the Wisconsin Alumni magazine.

In his article on "the fraternity problem," Dean Goodnight cites fraternity advantages as:

The provision of good living accommodations for one-fourth of the Wisconsin student body, it prevents the loneliness that often grips the unaffiliated student; it cements lifelong comradeships, gives the awkward, uncouth youth poise and polish, and tones down the sophisticated.

One of the bad aspects of fraternity life, according to the Wisconsin dean, is "the tenacity with which some chapters cling to the practice of 'hell week,' and the 'rough house initiation.'"

"Fraternism, loyalty to the order and respect and esteem for older brothers cannot be beaten into a freshman with a heavy paddle," the dean writes. Prof. Goodnight says he has kept a steady barrage on Wisconsin fraternities for six years, and while some have reformed and others modified their practices, others continue the old ways.

"Another danger to fraternities, which is within their power to curb," Dean Goodnight says, "is the economic peril of building beyond their means. Two Wisconsin chapters have gone through bankruptcy within the last four years and have disbanded as a result. Another large new house has passed into the hands of receivers, but the chapter still lives in it as a tenant. Two or three chapters are heavily encumbered and might be thrown into bankruptcy at any time by action of their creditors."

Sound business must be applied to running a fraternity, he writes, and adds that only 9 per cent of sorority houses are occupied, and 80 per cent, fraternity space filled, causing a certain business depression. A dyke must be built to stem the tide, the dean believes.

you that some of these have all but "put the racket on the Fritz."

EXPECTS IMPROVEMENT Add to this the novelty of the talkies, the fabulous salaries offered well-known Broadway figures for appearing in "talkies" and a general timidity born of many failures—and you have some idea of the Broadway chaos at present.

Meanwhile thousands of actors walk the streets and theaters grow darker. Out of this situation are likely to come lower priced tickets; a new attitude on scalpers; better and more amusing plays; new arrangements between producers, stage hands and actors and a sudden let-up in theater expansion.

Or maybe I'm too optimistic.
